Attempting Brevity The Queer French Art and Philosophy Real "Cave Man" Stuff

—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

In these days of specializing few read or listen. The salesman often talks a customer out of a sale after he has talked him into it. Editors write so much that nobody reads any. Things should be briefly told. Here's an effort:

Millerand, able French Prime Minister, "consents" to be elected president. And the "consent" is no joke. They mean that in France where they practice statesmanship, not politics.

Deschanel retires from the presidency merely because he is broken down in health and not able to do the work. A serious, punctilious people, the French.

Every Frenchman is willing to admit that perhaps some other Frenchman of ability might do their work. Even Napoleon said, "If there hadn't been any Rousseau there wouldn't have been any Napoleon."

Germany has just celebrated the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hegel, the philosopher. Hair is preparing to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the death of Dante.

For Dante many monuments are suggested. The Italian Minister of Education wisely suggested that the best way to honor Dante is to read his works.

The Germans discuss the value of Hegel's philosophy.

Philosophers generally come under the heading, "Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge?"

Hegel described his own value to the world when he said:

"Only one man understands me, and he really doesn't understand me."

If you think Hegel might interest you, go to the Public Library and try his "Phenomenology of the Mind." You will learn that he wouldn't interest you. He died of cholera and was buried, as he desired to be, between Solger and Fichte.

Greater in value than all Hegel's philosophy are Fichte's simple words: "God may forgive you for depriving children of bread that cost money. He will not forgive you for depriving them of air and sunlight that cost nothing."

The difference between Dante and Hegel is the difference between eternal truth and beauty expressed in art and feeble human guessing expressed in philosophy. You realize this when you see Dante, dead six hundred years, commanding the admiration of the earth, and Hegel, alive only ninety years ago, with Germany, his own land, wondering whether his work was really useful.

It happened in caves half a million years ago. It happened the other day in Chicago. Mrs. Lawrence looked on in her apartment. Max Cohen was calling. David Slavin, unwelcome, knocked. A half hour later Slavin lay dead. Cohen confessed that he had called him to death with his bare hands. Real "cave man stuff." One man did not dare let the other get far enough away to pick up anything dangerous.

The former Kaiser is writing a new will, his "last testament." What a different will from the one he expected to write! He can leave to his wife and children only what a Socialist German republic and Ebert, the harness-maker President, will allow them to have. Instead of leaving to each son a throne, he may leave to each a little furniture from his small house in Holland. "He hath put down the mighty" many and many a time in the world's history.

The Japanese say they are becoming "democratic," their royalty "is getting closer to the people." They have a grand reform. Formerly, when any member of the royal family, from a royal baby in arms to a doddering dowager, went out for a walk or drive traffic was suspended an hour beforehand. Now they only stop traffic and make the Japanese stay indoors with their hands on their mouths while the royalty is passing.

"Cox makes fight to win California." That brings a smile to Hiram Johnson as he sits contemplating the Pacific. If a canary can take a mouse from a large cat Mr. Cox can take California from Johnson and the Republican party, and from Harding and Coolidge, this election.

California is not apt to vote for Mr. Cox and his League of Nations that would allow England and Japan combined to make laws for the United States.

The New York Times hopes that "even" Hiram Johnson and Senator Borah, warned by the Wall street explosion, "will think twice before again crying out upon wicked international bankers who would sell their country's honor and safety." The Times doesn't know Borah or Johnson if it thinks any explosion can prevent their calling the truth.

ROXBURY DEATH MYSTERY

CHILD FOUND IN YARD; POLICE START INQUIRY

While the police announced that the child's death was probably due to a fall from a roof to which she had climbed, an investigation into the mysterious tragedy was begun.

Mrs. Lillian Rogers, the child's mother, was questioned. It was discovered that Dorothy had been treated at the City Hospital on two previous occasions, following mysterious accidents.

Dorothy was last seen by her mother shortly after 8 o'clock last night, the woman told the police. The child went across the street to a drug store in the vicinity of Blackstone Park in the South End to buy an ice cream cone.

When she failed to return Mrs. Rogers started to look for her, and informed the police of the disappearance at midnight.

Early today persons living at No. 63 East Lenox street, Roxbury, heard moans coming from the rear of the house, and on investigation found the child on the ground, every bone in her body fractured.

The spot where she was picked up was just under a roof, which was forty feet from the ground.

The authorities said today that they believed the lost child climbed to the roof by a fire escape to sleep.

A mattress which was airing there had been slept on. The police think when Dorothy awoke just before dawn she was bewildered, and walked off the roof in the darkness.

The girl was at once treated at the hospital for gas poisoning. On another occasion she was under treatment for some time following a fall from the window of her home.

BIG MILLS RUINED IN BATTLE

Balbriggan, Ire., Raided After Policemen Are Shot; Mac-Swiney Fasts 40 Days

BULLETIN!

London, Sept. 21.—There was no material change in the condition of Terence MacSwiney, the Sinn Fein Lord Mayor of Cork, when he began the fortieth day of his hunger strike in the Brixton jail infirmary.

An unconfirmed rumor was current this afternoon that MacSwiney might be removed to Holloway prison.

Dublin, Sept. 21.—Raids by Sinn Feiners, seizures of arms and the violent death of policemen were reported from many parts of Ireland today.

Arms and munitions were seized by Sinn Feiners in raids in five different counties. The reports did not indicate definitely the number of policemen killed nor the number of battles that developed from the raids.

London, Sept. 21.—Two civilians were killed and several others wounded when the town of Balbriggan, twenty miles northeast of Dublin, was sacked today, said a Central News dispatch from Dublin.

According to the Central News correspondent the town was attacked in retaliation for the murder of Inspector Burke of the Royal Irish Constabulary on Monday night.

A civilian named Gibbons is reported to have been stabbed in the face with a bayonet and later killed. Another civilian is said to have been dragged from his shed and pitchfork made of a ring marked out upon the ground and then shot to death. Many houses were set on fire. There were thrilling rescues of women with babies in their arms. Word was received that so many persons were injured that they could not be cared for at Balbriggan, and Dublin hospitals arranged to take in the overflow.

Many business houses at Balbriggan and hosiery mills were destroyed. Inspector Burke was shot dead and his brother was seriously wounded in the outbreak at Balbriggan on Monday night.

Two Irish civilians were reported to have been shot dead at Abbeyfeale when they disregarded an order by a sentry to halt.

Lloyd Carries War on Irish to Mitchell

Among today's developments in the war of Demarest Lloyd's Loyal Coalition on the Sinn Fein were:

1—President Lloyd announced that "the Boston taxpayers" would petition City Auditor Mitchell to withhold payment of the $25.66 necessary to pay for the City Council's cablegram to the British Prime Minister asking for the release of the Lord Mayor of Cork before the Brixton prison hunger strike.

2—The City Auditor, after he had already approved the bill for the cablegram and sent it to the City Treasurer. Unless formal protest is made to the Treasurer, Mr. Mitchell says, the bill will be paid the last of the month.

3—Lloyd announced his readiness to carry his protest to the City Treasurer.

4—General Secretary W. E. Adams of the Y. M. C. A., discussing the complaint of two disabled World War veterans from Parker Hill Hospital that Vice-President Randolph W. Smith of the Loyal Coalition, speaking in one of the "Y" halls in Huntington avenue under the auspices of the British-American Federation, had advocated handling American Sinn Feiners with "force and violence," declared that he could see no reason for barring the British-American Federation from further meetings in Bates Hall. It might, however, Mr. Adams said, be necessary to restrict the use of the hall hereafter to purely religious and educational purposes.

LLOYD CHARGES "TRICK."

Demarest Lloyd said today that he had been "tricked" into appearing yesterday before the City Council, where Councilor (Captain) David J. Brickley, a World War veteran with eleven wound stripes and the Distinguished Service Cross, called Lloyd a "dirty cur" and expressed not only a willingness but a burning desire to "take a punch at him." The City Council declined to hear Demarest Lloyd's protest against the $25.66 cable to Lloyd George, because Demarest Lloyd refused to give the information the councilors asked relative to the membership and financial status of his Coalition.

"I went before the City Council," Lloyd said, "on the promise that I should be heard. When I got there they not only refused to hear me, but insulted me."

APPEAL TO DUANE.

Councillor Brickley declined to discuss Lloyd or the Coalition. "We are not done with them yet," Captain Brickley said. "The so-called organization is 98 per cent. brag, bluster and bull. An investigation would let them wind out of it."

Fifteen former service men, it was announced, have appealed to Captain James T. Duane, State commander of the American Legion, to take up the alleged trouble-making activities of the Loyal Coalition and put an end to its alleged "incendiary" methods.

The blushing veteran who came to the City Council with the complaint against the Sinn Fein activities of a British-American Federation meeting in the Y. M. C. A. and then complained about the remarks of Randolph Smith are Edward Joseph Gallagan and Frank M. McGovern. They are ready to support with affidavits, they said, their complaint that Smith spoke of "cracking Sinn Feiners over the head." Their complain was taken up by the general secretary of the "Y."

"The Y. M. C. A. would not tolerate any sort of a meeting that it knew was wrong," Secretary Adams said.

"I was not present at the meeting but some of my assistants were and I am questioning them about what transpired there. Now that the matter has been brought to my attention, it will be investigated."

The American-British Federation was not charged for the use of the hall, the secretary said. "We were not permitted to put it on a rental basis," he explained, "and the organizations we permit to use it receive the service gratis.

'Keep Smiling,' Slogan of Battered Hero

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 21.—"Keep smiling!"

This is part of the comment following his advertisement in his shop window as made by an ex-soldier at Acton. The advertisement is headed "1914-1919" and reads:

5 times wounded.
2¼ years in hospital.
23 operations.
3 times given up—no hope.
One time reported killed in action.

He concludes with: "Bring your work and keep me smiling. Thank you. Fight the profiteer by letting a disabled soldier do your repairs.

ELEVATED CONDUCTOR IS HELD ON THREE CHARGES

Frank B. Stickney of Austin street, Somerville, an elevated conductor, was arraigned in East Boston Court today, charged with short-changing one passenger, striking another and using profanity to a policeman. He pleaded not guilty. His case was continued one week and he was bailed by the company.

Nine Autoists Fined

Nine autoists paid fines of $5 each in the East Boston Court today for failing to sound horns at Bread and Bennington streets, East Boston.

WOMEN ON DOCKS AS PICKETS

Boston Advocates of Ireland's Cause Attempt to Prevent Export of Coal

Boston women pickets today centred their drive against England in a movement to prevent the export of American coal to that country.

Three of them patrolled the docks of the Maritime Coal Company and th Cunard steamship line in East Boston armed with placards urging coal heavers not to load coal intended for England.

The following cablegram was sent to Robert Smillie, English labor leader, at London:

"Boston coal heavers promise refusal to handle coal. Prevent Lloyd George break miners' strike if miners help remove troops from Ireland."

The message was signed by John Lucey of Boston who has been assisting the picketers.

The picketing is designed, the leaders said, to thwart the effort of the British Premier to import 150,000,000 tons of American coal to England and thus break the strike of British coal miners.

It was revealed in New York a few days ago that our British agent had contracted for 25,000,000 tons of coal here. The situation particularly affects New England, following the statement of President Clark of the New England Coal Dealers Association that this section of the United States was facing the greatest hard coal shortage since the anthracite strike of 1902. The explanation given by men who have studied the fuel situation is that the usual coal supply destined for New England has been going to foreign countries.

England's coal miners for several years have been cutting down their output in an attempt to wipe out profits under private ownership, the owners have claimed.

APPEAL TO COAL HEAVERS.

The women pickets who have been working for Ireland's cause appealed to the coal heavers not to load the lighters with coal destined for British ships in the outer harbor.

The placards carried today bore the following inscriptions:

"Coal for America First. Beat Lloyd George and the High Cost of Living."

"Workers, Why Load Coal for England to Sell at Double Prices Abroad?"

"Put the Stars and Stripes on the Seas Again. Americanize America."

SOLD BREAD SUNDAY; HIS CASE IS FILED

Samuel Logrisi of North Russell street, charged with violation of the Lord's Day laws by selling bread, escaped punishment today by informing Judge Barnes in the East Boston Court that his employer, J. Person of Causeway street, had assured him that he would not be molested. Judge Barnes placed the case on file.

Want to Put Babies on Level With Dogs

Albany, Sept. 21.—The policy of preference for Pekinese pups, as against children, openly declared by hundreds—if not thousands—of New York landlords, may suddenly find itself unpopular in the eyes of the law.

Assemblyman Theodore Roosevelt and Speaker Sweet took a stand for making it a penal offence for any landlord to refuse occupancy of his apartment to persons with children.

It appears probable that the next session of the Legislature will correct the situation.

BOSTON WOOER GOT HER $660, SAYS GIRL

New York, Sept. 21.—Theodore Lunnen, who says he lives on Warrenton street, Boston, was arraigned today on the complaint of a girl who charged he made whirlwind love to her, won her heart, "borrowed" $660 her savings from work as a servant, and then disappeared. He wanted the money, he said, for the initial payment on "a nice little suburban home."

CAR STOLEN YEAR AGO FOUND IN SOMERVILLE

The touring car of Dr. Frank P. Whitten, of No. 14 Riverview avenue, Waltham, stolen in Boston on September 16, 1919, was found today in a West Somerville barn by Special Officers Mallahan and Stokes of Cambridge and returned to its owner. While the officers declined to give the details of their find, they are believed to have acted on a "tip." Arrests, it was said, are expected.

HELD FOR ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

Vito Lopresti of East Sixteenth street, New York, arraigned in East Boston Court today charged with assault and battery with intent to murder on Archangelo Amoroso of Sumner street, East Boston, was held in $5,000 until October 5. According to the police, the two men shot each other. Amoroso is still confined to the hospital.

7-MONTHS-OLD INFANT IS BURNED TO DEATH

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 21.—The seven months old son of Clarence C. Lonsdale was burned to death here after his four-year-old sister, playing with matches, set the bed clothes afire.

FEAR FOUL PLAY IN GIRL'S DEATH

Six-year-old Dorothy Rogers, of No. 417 Harrison avenue, died in the City Hospital today a few hours after her bruised and broken body was found in a pool of blood on East Lenox street, Roxbury.

HANGS HIMSELF TO DOORPOST

Chelsea Man Commits Suicide in Room Over Garage Where He Worked

Ignatz Korolonis, who for several months has been employed in the garage of Jacob Eichler at No. 18 Franklin avenue, Chelsea, was found hanging today from a doorpost in a room over the garage, where he made his home.

The man was dead when policemen, called by Eichler, broke down the door. Very little is known of Korolonis, and the police are endeavoring to locate his friends through a Waterbury address found among his papers.

MEXICAN CONGRESS WILL REVISE TARIFF

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—Steps are under way in the Mexican Congress for a complete revision of the Mexican tariff. Leaders of the movement explained today that the purpose is to establish a high protective tariff to foster home industries. The import duty is to be increased on all articles that can be made in Mexico.

DEMOCRAT OPPOSES SEATING OF SOCIALISTS

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, New York, Democrat, announced today that he would contest the right of the five re-elected Socialists to sit in the Assembly, on the ground that they had not yet received certificates of election.

HARDING WOULD 'SCRAP' TREATY, SAYS LONDON PAPER STORY

QUOTED AS SAYING ENGLAND ASKED TOO MUCH OF U. S.

London, Sept. 21.—The first exhaustive analysis of the position of the Republican presidential candidate, Warren G. Harding, on the Anglo-American problems is carried in a two-column interview which the American correspondent of the Morning Post has sent his paper from Marion, Ohio.

The correspondent emphasizes the fact that Candidate Harding had made a decision against interviews, but authorized the quotations carried in the article.

"Mr. Harding," the correspondent writes, "does not assume that he is already elected, but if the reports from his managers are reliable he has every reason to feel that his election is assured. He has no hostile feelings toward England.

"On the contrary, he does not hesitate to frankly voice admiration for the cleverness with which England has managed her affairs, saying that the same single purpose that has always been British policy—that of promoting her national interests—should now be pursued by the United States."

In discussing the treaty questions Mr. Harding said:

"America had some share in the war. We contributed something. I believe, toward victory, and now that victory is won we want to continue in a good spirit. It isn't being a good sport to desert your friends when they are in need and your helping hand may make their task easier. The American people, I believe, I can safely say have not that bias of sports-and-dp.

RIGHT TO MAKE PEACE.

"But we have a right to be at peace with Germany. Your country is. So is France. And it is unfair that the technical state of war should continue and that the laws enacted to meet the emergency, which are unjust and burdensome, should remain on the statute books in time of peace. That, however, does not mean that by concluding peace with Germany we must turn our backs on our former allies or do anything that will work to their injury."

It is the correspondent's impression that candidate Harding is about to scrap the treaty of Versailles, but that inasmuch as England and France are willing to accept amendments and the United States holds to the essentials of the treaty, these two nations will be reconciled.

"On the question of the association of nations Mr. Harding feels keenly," the correspondent continues, "but recognizes that American traditions must be respected in any association of the United States with the European nations and must be subject to the limitations thereby imposed.

"Mr. Harding said: 'The war has immensely increased the power and influence of England. In saying this I do not want it understood as meaning that England profited by improper methods or that she did anything she should not have done. She made magnificent sacrifices, but that does not prevent me from saying England asked too much in suggesting that the United States accept a mandate for Armenia.'

ENGLAND'S "CLEVERNESS."

That, the Senator pointed out, was an illustration of England's cleverness in always looking after her own interests.

"What England hoped for was to shift the burden from her back to America's. While this would have been greatly to the advantage of England, it would have been unfairly for the United States to assume a mandate over a country in which it has no political interest."

Senator Harding emphasized the impossibility of any military alliance between the United States and England, stating that an alliance of this character was foreign to American ideas and repugnant to the people. But because a military alliance is out of the question, an association or agreement with Europe isn't precluded which shall benefit mankind if the United States is left free to determine its own course of action.

"Senator Harding anticipates, but does not fear, that the post-war commercial rivalry will threaten the harmony of Anglo-American intercourse. He believes that the United States should carry the bulk of American commerce in her own bottoms. He does not hesitate to say that should he be elected he will do everything in his power to realize this ambition. 'How foolish we have been,' he said. 'We have built up England's great merchant fleet, we made Germany's mercantile marine possible, but we must not repeat that folly. We must not give our carrying trade and its profits to other nations when we ought to keep those profits in our own pockets.'

Senator Harding foresees a sharp struggle between England and the United States for the South American trade. Regarding the Panama Canal tolls, he says the canal was built not as an act of charity to the world, but primarily to promote American commerce and defence. If America is really to benefit from her investment and American commerce be helped American vessels should be given this proper discrimination against foreign competitors. Senator Harding contends.

Prisoner Loses Crap Game With Judge

Chicago, Sept. 21.—"C'mon, white boy, Shoots a dollah."

"Let 'em roll."

"Baby needs shoes. Whoosh! Shoots two dollahs, is you game?"

"I'm game. Let 'em roll."

"Crap! Lady Luck, as you were."

"Thirsty." Smiddy, a negro crap-shooter, rolling the "galloping dominoes" with Municipal Judge Stewart for a fine, in the Chicago Avenue Court, lost $1 and costs.

G. O. P. HUNTING LABOR VOTE

Boring From Within to Offset Gompers' Indorsement of Gov. James M. Cox

Marion, O., Sept. 21.—The Republican campaign directors are "boring from within" to win the labor vote of the country and to offset so far as possible the effort of Samuel Gompers' appeal to workers to support the Cox-Roosevelt ticket in November.

There has been a stream of labor leaders through Republican headquarters here, all of whom have assured Senator Harding that the Gompers nor any other American Federation of Labor leader can "deliver" the labor vote to Governor Cox.

The Republicans have lined up a number of labor representatives—all members of the American Federation of Labor—to spread the gospel of Republicanism through labor's ranks. John I. Nolan and P. H. McCarthy assured Senator Harding that Pacific coast labor will go preponderantly for him. Today W. J. James, national representative of the Illinois miners, told the candidate that Gompers could not swing labor into the Democratic fold.

"Gompers' effort will fail just as it has always failed," said James. "In the last few months in Illinois, Montana and in Colorado I have found that the miners who are Republicans are staying that way and the miners who are Democrats will support Cox."

DEMOCRATS DISMAYED BY ADAMS' STATEMENT

Bay State Democrats were dismayed today by the refusal of Charles Francis Adams of Concord to serve as Democratic presidential elector in the Fifth District. Mr. Adams was nominated by the Democratic State convention in Springfield. He stated flatly today that he was going to vote the Republican ticket and would accept no honors from the Democrats. He is a great-great-grandson of John Adams, second President of the United States, founder of the Harvard University and amateur skipper of the American yacht Resolute in the recent cup races.

TO CLOSE 'SLUSH FUND' PROBE

Senator Kenyon Announces He Will Soon Go on Stump for Harding

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 21—The senatorial slush fund investigation will be wound up Saturday night, Senator William S. Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, chairman of the committee conducting the probe, predicted today.

"We will resume our investigation here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of cleaning up some of the tag ends of our clearing-house lengths," Senator Kenyon said.

He and other members of the committee, Republican and Democratic, are about to plunge into the campaign as stump speakers, Senator Kenyon explained. He himself is to tour the Middle South "in behalf of Senator Harding's behalf."

"I shall keep on speaking right up to election day," Senator Kenyon added. "It looks like a landslide for Senator Harding. The American people are weary of the Democratic administration. They want a change in their national government and in order to secure that change they will unquestionably place the next administration in Republican hands."

FEARS HUSBAND HAS TAKEN DAUGHTER WEST

Mrs. Irene Lavole, of No. 7 Jackson avenue, Everett, whose fifteen-months-old daughter, Jean Pauline Lavole, mysteriously disappeared from that address on Sunday, fears that her husband, George E. Lavole, has taken the child West with him and threatens to supply for a warrant for his arrest.

Mrs. Lavole claims that her husband obtained a court order, which granted her the custody of the child pending the settlement of her divorce suit against her husband on the ground of desertion and cruel and abusive treatment. The Lavoles have been separated six times during

VANDALS AGAIN ENTER HOUSE IN MARLBORO

Marlboro, Sept. 21.—Vandals for the second time in a week forced the entrance to an Emmett street house owned by John King, disfred furniture and carried off a chandelier ripped from the ceiling. They also took a bunch of keys. Entrance in both instances was effected by smashing a window in the house, which is unoccupied. Malicious destruction rather than theft evidently was the motive of the visitors, King, a Civil War veteran, believes the destruction was the work of boys.

ST. MARK'S CATHOLIC CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

St. Mark's Catholic Club of Dorchester has elected the following officers: President, Joseph A. Mennessey; first vice-president, John B. Hynes; second vice-president, John J. McVey; financial secretary, Joseph V. Crowley; recording secretary, Fred W. Curtis; sergeant-at-arms, George Patriquin; librarian, William Harmon.

The organization comprises about three hundred members and has been in existence three years.

LAWSON OF ROXBURY TO RUN FOR LEGISLATURE

George H. Lawson of No. 225 Dudley street, has filed papers with the election commissioners to run for State Representative from the twelfth Suffolk County district, which includes Ward 12 in Roxbury. He is fifty-two years old. He is opposed to the League of Nations.

OPEN 'Y' SCHOOL AT PROVIDENCE

Northeastern College Starts Second Season With 150 Students; Hub Man President

Providence, Sept. 21.—With an enrollment of more than seventy-five students in the freshman class and a like number in the sophomore class, the Northeastern College of Commerce and Finance opened at the Y. M. C. A. here.

The opening lecture was given by Frank Palmer Speare of Boston, president of the college. The school was established in Boston twenty-three years ago and now has branches in Providence, Lynn, Springfield, Bridgeport, Ct., New Haven and Worcester.

The opening of the school was presided over by Byron A. Pierce, president of a Providence manufacturing company. President Speare was the principal speaker. He urged the great need of specializing in commercial work, particularly in accounting, which he termed a science.

"For many years the farmer persuaded the same courses as his grandfather," he said, "and got smaller crops and unsatisfactory results.

"Scientific accounting is solving this problem. A business accountant studies conditions, applies the proper remedies and charts his course. Guess work is eliminated and substituted by science.

It is my contention that if America is to be rid of radicalism, selfishness and greed it must adopt religious training and education. The Y. M. C. A. stands for both. The Northeastern College, which it is sponsing, has students who are for the most part men of more than school age, men who have responsibilities and appreciate what the school has to offer.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JOHN T. RICE

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon for John T. Rice at his late home, No. 39 Thatcher street, Westwood. Mr. Rice died yesterday in a Boston hospital. He was born in England about forty-five years ago. He was graduated from Noble and Greenough Academy and Harvard College. Later he became a member of the firm of Bond & Goodwin. He served during the war in France with the Red Cross. He is survived by his wife, a son, John T., jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Lyman.

PREDICTS HARDING WILL CARRY OHIO BY 80,000

New York, Sept. 21.—Senator Harding will carry Ohio by over 80,000. This was the prediction of Harry M. Daugherty, personal campaign manager for the Republican nominee, at National Headquarters here. Daugherty also declared that Harding would sweep the West and Northwest and probably will break the solid South.

ARMED MEN PREVENT DUEL IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—Five men with drawn revolvers prevented a duel between General Jose Alessio Robles and Jacinto Trevino, minister of communications. They are political opponents and the duel is said to have been arranged after a fiery denunciation of his rival by General Robles.

LYNN SHOE WORKERS AGAIN DENIED INCREASE

Reiterating their announcement of last week, the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association, at a meeting in the Oxford Club, declared that no wage increases would be granted the shoe workers.

Toledo Bandits Won Racing Trophy

By International News Service.

Toledo, O., Sept. 21.—That the trio of Toledo bandits who engaged local police in a gun battle last Tuesday were "regular" people when not working at their profession, was disclosed today by police, following the discovery of where a silver cup, found in the bandits' apartment, came from.

It was the prize that a speed boat, owned by members of the gang, Archie Dennison, who was shot to death, and Ott (Cowboy) Hill, who was shot twenty-five times by the police, Tuesday, won at a regatta held at Algonac, Mich., Labor Day. Joe Forest, who surrendered to the police, also was a part owner.

Trailing the cup, police found that the bandits, who are credited with stealing more than $100,000 from banks in the last six months, had been posing at the Michigan Summer resort as oil promoters and sportsmen. They mingled with Lake Shore society and spent money lavishly. They were the most popular group at the place and their women friends the most beautiful.

The police believe that the band had a speed boat built to flee across the lake to Canada in case their identity was discovered and that they used it in the lake race as an alibi for having it built. It cost $6,000.

Tobacco Grower Drops Auto Theft Charge Against Young Couple

Salem, Sept. 21.—Ariel Mitchelson, wealthy tobacco grower of Tarifville, Ct., today withdrew the charge of larceny which he had made against Mrs. Edward D. Millen, his daughter, and Mr. Millen, with whom she eloped four days ago. Mitchelson had charged them with stealing the automobile in which they ran away.

Withdrawal of the charge followed a conference of lawyers in the corridors of the district court.

When the lawyers announced that there was no prosecution, Judge Sears ordered no case could be settled in such summary fashion in his court. He insisted on the arraignment of the defendants, and then dismissed them for lack of evidence.

Neither the Millens nor Mitchelson's lawyers would say whether the elopement of the runaway complaint portended a reconciliation.

Mrs. Millen declared with heat that she would not speak about the settlement or indicate where she would spend her honeymoon.

BOMB DESTROYS HOUSES IN SWISS PROVINCE

London, Sept. 21.—A number of houses were damaged by a bomb explosion at Schaffhausen, capital of the Swiss Canton of Schaffhausen, said a Central News dispatch from Geneva today. During the police investigation a second bomb was found.

Purse Snatcher Guilty

William C. Nicholson, no home, in the East Boston Court today was found guilty of the robbery of $2.22 from Mrs. Dagney Trulsen, of No. 218 Sumner street, and was held in $1,000. He was fined $5 for drunkenness. According to the police, Nicholson snatched the woman's pocketbook.

LOCAL BRIEFS

SCIENCE CASES SET FOR TRIAL

Hearing in November to Permit Judge Hughes to Keep His Engagements

To enable Charles E. Hughes, former justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to keep engagements, Chief Justice Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court has specially assigned for arguments before the full court on November 29 the Christian Science cases.

Judge Hughes is the senior counsel for the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, in whose suit the directors of the Christian Science Church, Judge Frederic Dodge as Master has found that the directors illegally removed Lamont Rowland from his office as a trustee of the publishing society.

Judge Dodge also found that the directors had no right to remove John V. Dittemore, one of their associates.

Following the case of the trustees, the full court will hear the suit brought by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen to have the court declare that the will of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy created a public charitable trust, and asking the court to appoint trustees to take possession of a large fund now in the hands of the trustees of the publishing society and the directors of the church.

At the same time Edwin A. Krauthoff will address the court on his bill which seeks to have the court declare that a by-law that the Manual established by Mrs. Eddy is the governing power of the Christian Science Church, and that its functions are not controlled by deeds of trust made by her.

DEFEATED DEMOCRATS TO RUN AS INDEPENDENT

Representative James J. Moynihan of Ward 18, Dorchester, who at the primaries was declared winner by one vote over William I. Hennessey and on a recount lost by six votes, has taken out independent nomination papers for the House. As there is a third Democratic candidate, Francis X. Coyne, a lively contest in that district is expected. In Ward 17 Coleman Kelley, who was defeated by three votes by Representative Frank Cowin, will also run as an independent.

RUNAWAY HORSE CRASHES INTO WINDOW

Frightened by an automobile horn, a horse drawing one of the public works department dump carts on Beacon street today ran across the sidewalk and smashed a plate glass window in the Houghton & Dutton building. The horse was cut badly about the nose and was taken to the Angell Memorial Hospital. P. J. Murray, the driver, was uninjured.

TROTZKY FORMS NEW ARMIES

Preparing for New Drive in North as His Troops Retreat in Galicia

Correspondence of the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Warsaw, Sept. 20, via London, Sept. 21.—Although the Russians are reported in disorderly retreat all along the Southern end of the Polish-Galician battle front, Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik minister of war, is believed to be massing two new armies of 100,000 men for a new blow in the North.

The Bolshevik forces are being concentrated in the sector of the Niemen River, on the northern end of the front, to attempt a new counter-offensive. The two Russian armies are reported by airmen to be well equipped. They consist largely of troops drawn from Siberia.

Trotzky is said to have established headquarters at Lida, where he has been for some time. He is directing preparations for the new drive in person.

The Poles are rapidly developing their successes in Volhynia and along the Galician-Ukrainian border before Winter puts a stop to operations. The advancing Poles have reached Orsechovice and have occupied the important towns of Brody, Tarnopol Trembovis and Olejoff.

In the Volhynian sector the Poles have captured Dubno, one of the so-called Volhynian triangle fortresses. By the capture of Dubno the Poles on the front southeast of Warsaw have rolled the Russians back until they are now 240 miles from the Polish capital. A report is current here that the real hope of the Moscow Soviet is to bring about a new peace conference to include Russia and Germany for revision of the treaty of Versailles.

BORAH COMING HERE TO SCORE LEAGUE

Washington, Sept. 21.— Senator Borah of Idaho has left Washington to open his New England campaign in behalf of Senator Harding and against the League of Nations.

MALDEN'S MAYOR CALLS FOR ACTION TO COMBAT COST OF LUNCH

TO FORCE PRICES DOWN

Girls in Financial District Carry Their Midday Meals Movement Gaining

Mayor John V. Kimball of Malden has followed the lead of Mayor Andrew J. Peters in indorsing the Boston American's movement to combat profiteering in Boston restaurants through Bring-Your-Lunch-From-Home clubs. Mayor Kimball is a Boston business man and realizes that Boston restaurants are charging prohibitive prices for their food.

"The Boston American's idea is a good one," said Mayor Kimball, "and I am in favor of having people carry lunches until restaurants reduce their prices. Fortunately I am situated so that I can get my lunch at home and of course that is much better than carrying it. Prices ought to be reduced."

ASK FIRM FOR LUNCH ROOM.

Aroused by the prices they are compelled to pay for food in the restaurants within the financial district, several girls employed at the main offices of Stone & Webster, No. 147 Milk street, are circulating a petition asking the officials to establish a lunch room where they may eat their noon-day meals.

At present nearly 100 girls employed by the firm carry their lunches, but eat at their desks within view of all who enter. The young women desire privacy while eating. They believe that when this matter is brought to the attention of the firm's officials a room will be set aside for their use.

The stories appearing in the Boston American, telling of what other firms have done for their employes inspired the petition of the Stone & Webster girls.

STATE HOUSE GIRLS FIXED.

Fred H. Kimball, superintendent of buildings at the State House, has placed Room 444 at the disposal of the women employes at the State House for a lunch room. Mrs. Vella C. Reeve of Allston, chief clerk of the special commission on the investigation of maternity benefits, is co-operating with Kimball in working out the plan.

Kimball is to furnish six gray tables covered with black oilcloth. If more are needed he will supply them. Mrs. Reeve, an artist of no mean ability, will decorate the tables. Three electrical stoves, upon which tea, cocoa and coffee may be prepared, are to be supplied by Kimball.

Kimball has also arranged for free milk, ice, etc., for the girls. The walls of the lunch room will contain sample menus prepared by Dr. M. E. Champion of the State Board of Health.

INDORSES "CLUB" IDEA.

Many letters have been received by the Boston American indorsing its lunch-from-home movement. Horace T. Cahill, a Boston business man, writes, "Allow me to congratulate the Boston American on its latest and most effective campaign against the high cost of living. It is undisputed that if the people adopted your plan restaurant prices would be quickly and throughly smashed.

"Like every other commodity, lunch prices are subject to the laws of supply and demand. Stop people from patronizing the restaurants, thereby lessening the demand for lunches and the proprietors must either make prices attractive to their customers back again, or they must just naturally go out of business.

"Thank you for your splendid work for the community and rest assured of my humble support in your crusade against high lunch prices."

TELLS OF PROFITEERING.

Another man writes, "I have read in your paper of the Bring-Your-Lunch-From-Home clubs and hope you will give the plan wide publicity. The restaurants in Boston are charging outrageous prices and will continue to do so as long as the public is willing to pay.

"The other day I went into a popular Washington street self-service and found out that they did not have a bill of fare and that he food was not priced. After helping myself to a small dish of cold ham and potato salad, a piece of apple pie and a glass of milk, the attendant handed me a check for 70 cents. Now, I can go to Chinatown and get a better and better food at noon for 40 cents, and will not patronize American restaurants any more. People who complain of high prices, wake up! Carry your lunch from home. Stop patronizing the profiteers. Show them that you are not dependent on them."

LIQUOR LEFT AT WRONG ADDRESS

West Newton Police Seize Auto and 100 Quarts of Whiskey

The carelessness of four men in delivering an automobile loaded with 100 quarts of whiskey to the wrong address in West Newton Sunday morning resulted today in Federal prohibition agents being enriched by that amount. The consignee lost the whiskey and the car.

Neighbors who saw four men leave the auto in a vacant barn on Pelham street, West Newton, grew suspicious and notified Policeman D. E. McLaughlin. He found the car, with its load of ardent spirits.

The West Newton police took charge and notified the prohibition agents today. The consignee is known to the police. The men who delivered it went back to New York.

FORM NON-PARTISAN SOCIETY OF VETERANS

Sergeant George E. Wilson, formerly of the 101st Infantry and formerly State organizer of the American Legion, has inaugurated a new organization called the Ex-Service Men's Non-Partisan League. Sergeant Wilson said that after a nine-weeks' trip for the American Legion he discovered widespread dissatisfaction with the legion's attitude in being non-political.

The headquarters for the new organization, which already numbers 5,113 members, is at No. 7 Water street, room 910.

GIRL REVEALS CLEW TO WHITE SLAVE RING

Pittsburgh, Sept. 21.—When Miss Helen Brady, eighteen years old, half clothed, staggered into police headquarters and fell fainting, the police got their first clew to a white slave ring which they say has been operating in Western Pennsylvania. The police arrested Peter Dentella, Norman Danovich and Dominick Dioro. Miss Brady came from Haydenville. She was met at the station, she says, by Dentella, who promised to get her a situation. She declares she was taken to a Webster avenue hotel kept by Dioro, where she was held a prisoner for a week.

Says Rents Are Making Women Mental Wrecks

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 21.—Thousands of Brooklyn women have been driven to the point of nervous breakdown, many have collapsed in court during landlords' proceedings to compel the surrender of houses while large numbers are being subjected to mental persecution because of the house shortage, according to a Brooklyn Municipal Court judge, Jacob S. Strahl.

Judge Strahl declared that unless the State Legislature put a stop to evictions before October 1, not less than 60,000 dispossess proceedings will be started in Brooklyn during the first week of October and 98 per cent of the tenants will be unable to find apartments in which to move. The situation is declared to be even worse in Manhattan borough.

"For months I have been noticing a decided increase in the nervous condition of the women who are brought before me in dispossess proceedings," said Judge Strahl. "Many of them have fainted and many others have stood speechless, so nervous and worried that I could not even by the utmost kindliness of effort induce them to say a word.

"In several cases women who have testified in these proceedings have come back next day to tell me that they were so nervous they did not know what they were saying. These women have been driven by the uncertainty of the situation confronting them to the endurance limit of their nervous systems.

SUFFERED DURING WAR.

"A large proportion of them are wives, mothers and sisters of men who fought in the World War. During the war they suffered the uncertainty of what might happen to their loved ones.

"Since then they have been subjected to the uncertainty of what their landlords could and would do to them. A large proportion of them have reached condition of nervous wreckage—an actual menace to coming generations.

"To my knowledge, many landlords have taken advantage of this condition to make threats to the women of their tenants, instead of the men. They have found they can frighten the women into pleading with their husbands to pay more rent.

MUST RANSOM PEACE.

"The family heads thus must ransom the peace which their women's nerves demand. Hundreds of men have accepted unjust rent increases solely to save their women from sleepless nights and nervous exhaustion."

Judge Strahl declared that the 1920 rent laws were intended to conserve the people's health and that the only way their health can be conserved was to stop evictions, except for the non-payment of rent.

"Under the common law," said Judge Strahl, "a landlord could not evict a tenant. Then the summary laws were passed to help the landlords. Now the landlords need no help. They have been helping themselves more than plentifully."

ARMY EDUCATION PLAN UPHELD

General Shanks Takes Issue With New England Educators' Objections to System

Major-General D. C. Shanks of the First Army Corps area is heading a campaign to get recruits for the army in this district and to have every young man get an education while in the service.

He is planning to have evidence placed before the objectors to this army educational plan, convincing them of its value.

"Army training has changed since I entered the service forty years ago," explained the general.

"It has changed to such an extent that the army today is making soldiers in the morning with its drills and teaching of military tactics. In the afternoon, when the soldier would formerly while away his time, the army gives him an opportunity to learn the elementary branches of knowledge and a trade, so that when he leaves the army, after one year or three years' enlistment, he is a much better man.

"Those objecting to the army trying to educate young men in this locality should see for themselves what this system has done in the South among the camps.

"I feel sure that the most casual investigation will show that the educational system of the army, as carried on, makes the idle time of the soldier turn to profit."

WILLS $57,500 TO EMPLOYES

Late John R. Ainsley, Drygoods Merchant, Rewards 73 of Firm's Workers

Gifts of sums of money totalling $57,500, have been received by seventy-three employes of the firm of John R. Ainsley & Co., wholesale fancy dry goods company, Nos. 27-29 Harrison avenue. The money was willed the employes by the late John R. Ainsley of No. 465 Aubudon road, senior partner of the firm, as a reward for their faithful service in the upbuilding of the business.

Ainsley, who is believed to have left an estate of about $1,000,000, the bulk of which will go to his widow, rewarded the workers according to their length of service.

Sums of $1,000 were left each employe who had been connected with the firm eight years or more; $500 to each person employed less than eight but more than five years and $200 to every employe who had served between three and five years.

In the first group there were forty-eight beneficiaries, representing a total payment of $48,000 by the Ainsley estate; in the second group fifteen, who received $7,500, and in the third group ten persons who divided $2,000 among them.

Eight of the beneficiaries were women.

It was noticeable fact that most of those affected by the unusual provisions were employes of more than eight years' standing.

GUARD NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE

Ready for Possible Attempt to Blow Up Building; Fischer Cleared in Outrage

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 21.—With the prospect that the Wall Street bomb blast may be added to the nation's list of great unsolved crime mysteries, federal, county and municipal detectives today settled down to a long and systematic hunt for the bomb maker or makers and commenced to eliminate clews and theories that so far have yielded no result.

The explosion in front of J. P. Morgan & Co. occurred at noon last Thursday, but not an arrest has been made. The Grand Jury investigation has produced no evidence materially to aid the investigators in solving the mystery.

EXAMINE POWDER SAMPLES.

Detectives were not hopeful that the discovery of 250 pounds of smokeless powder on an old houseboat off Plum Island in Jamaica Bay could be linked with the Wall street outrage. A quantity of "TNT" was removed from the same boat several months before the explosion occurred. The houseboat had been abandoned long ago. No one knows the owner.

Samples of the powder seized upon the craft are under examination at police headquarters and at Fort Hamilton.

Armed guards paced the corridors of the Custom House and the streets surrounding the building as a result of the warning sent to Collector of Internal Revenue William H. Edwards that an attempt would be made to blow it up at 9 o'clock this afternoon.

MANY EMPLOYES ABSENT.

Thomas Lawler, assistant custodian of the Custom House, estimated that about one-third of the employes of the postoffice sub-station in the building and probably one-half of the custom employes had appeared at their posts. The others had "important engagements" elsewhere or were "detained at home by illness."

The women employes in particular were conspicuously absent from duty. Only two entrances to the Custom House were open to the public. Two guards were stationed at each doorway and every person was scrutinized.

Anyone with a suspicious looking bundle was stopped and searched. One clerk had his lunch basket opened and examined before he was allowed to proceed. Policemen in uniform were on duty on the ground floor corridor, while secret service agents were scattered throughout the building.

STATEMENTS INCOHERENT.

Edward P. Fischer, who sent warnings of the Wall street explosion to several friends, has been eliminated from the case.

Fischer's statements to the police and Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley were so incoherent that it was decided not to take him before the Grand Jury. Arrangements are under way by Fischer's family to have him committed to a sanitarium for mental treatment.

One clew on which a large squad of detectives were concentrating their efforts was contained in the sawed-up window weights which formed part of the infernal machine. Some of the iron slugs bore numbers between raised lines by which it may be possible to trace the plant where they were made. Experts who have examined the slugs say that they are inferior and may have been picked up from the rejection dump at a foundry.

PROTEST SUNDAY RIFLE MATCHES

Rev. D. M. Kneeland Urges Gen. Shanks to Omit Sabbath Firing at Wakefield

The Rev. D. M. Kneeland, secretary of the Lord's Day League, has filed an objection against the rifle matches of the army, navy and marine corps which are scheduled to open Sunday, October 10.

The protest is sent to Major-General D. C. Shanks, commanding the first corps area, who, with Colonel George Van Orden, M. C., organized the matches. Dr. Kneeland, in speaking of his protest, said:

"This is merely an effort on our part to show that we have some reverence for the Lord's Day which, in many respects, is parting with its sacred character in New England.

"These rifle matches begin October 10 and will continue till October 12, at Wakefield. To continue firing ten shots at quick intervals from a rifle all day long on the Lord's Day is ... talion a matter calling for a protest.

"... we are not fastidious about this, ... simply want respect paid to a sacred day, which, would lose its meaning if protests of this kind were not consistently advanced. We only hope that Sunday will not be the firing on Sunday."

The matches will open with a marksmanship test in which former service men and others are invited to compete. The range will be 200 yards, 500 yards and 200 yards.

Lieutenant Dudley S. Brown and Edward Mahony of the marine corps are making the arrangements for the opening of the matches.

Captain Bates, who will represent the army at the matches, refused to comment upon the protest.

Four-Year Fight for 'Drys,' Says Bryan

Lincoln, Sept. 21.—The next four years will be the hardest for the drys to keep prohibition in force, according to William J. Bryan, in the current issue of The Commoner, his monthly magazine.

Prohibitionists are urged to disregard political affiliations at the polls in so far as the Congressional contests are concerned.

Mr. Bryan believes that the present enforcement law, if it survives the next four years, will finally settle the prohibition question.

The Commoner avers that both Harding and Cox have invited the voters to elect a wet Congress.

LUMBER CAMP BOSS IS SHOT; ASSAILANT SOUGHT

Mendon, Sept. 21.—William Rockford, forty years old, foreman at the lumber camp of T. A. Fletcher in the Pond Hill district, was wounded in the right leg by an assailant, who fired from a shore. The police are looking for a lumberman named Fabien Beaudlard. Beaudlard, according to arrangements given to the police, was discharged and had threatened to shoot Rockford. Rockford, too, said himself. Some time after the two shots fired at Rockford other lumbermen heard the more shots, and believe Beaudlard may have fulfilled his alleged threat to kill himself and the dog.

REJECTED SUITOR SLASHES GIRL IN VIEW OF CROWD

New York, Sept. 21.—When pretty twenty-three-year-old Marie Latona refused to accept the proposal of a former sweetheart, the latter in view of a large crowd at a street carnival in Williamsburg, whipped out a razor and savagely attacked her, severing her throat and face. Flourishing the razor, he kept the crowd at bay, backed to an automobile and escaped.

HALT RACE RIOT IN CHICAGO

Shooting and Mobbing Follow Murder and Attempt at Lynching of Negroes

By International News Service.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Heavy details of police are on guard in the stock yards district of the South Side today to maintain order following a race riot in which one man was killed and several wounded.

After the precipitation of some 2,000 negro workers in the stock yards special trains proceeded and followed by cars carrying policemen were run today to transport the colored workmen in the yards.

Three charges accused of the murder of Thomas G. Harrell are under arrest while several others are held on suspicion of participation in the fatal affray. The three charged with murder were captured after a mob of 5,000 persons had driven them to take refuge in St. Gabriel's Church, rectory of Father Thomas Burke, who held back the mob while police squirted away the negroes who believed to have averted trouble.

Harrell, a former policeman, was killed during an assault which Harrell is said to have precipitated by remarks made to three colored men.

Harrell's friends gave chase to the negro after he had fallen to the street with fatal knife wounds in his body and a crowd quickly joined in pursuit. The negroes, however, reached St. Gabriel's Church and hid.

Throughout the night outbreaks in the stock yards district kept the police busy. Five fights were summoned, one house was stormed and the windows broken.

One white man was shot in the back during the mobbing of a negro and a negro was pulled from a street car and beaten with clubs.

'GO TO CHURCH,' SAYS TAFT

"Without Religion Popular Government Cannot Survive," He Declares

Without religion popular government cannot survive, says William Howard Taft, in a statement defining the religious convictions of an American citizen as he interprets them, made at the request of Unitarians who are about to observe the Pilgrim Tercentenary with a united, denominational forward movement.

The statement was made public today by the Unitarian campaign committee, representing 62,000 men and women, and of which Mr. Taft is honorary chairman. Announcement was also made that Mr. Taft had recruited a national committee of more than 125 men and women.

"The study of a man's relation to his Creator and his responsibility for his life to God," says Mr. Taft, "energizes his moral inclinations, strengthens his self-sacrifice and restraint, prompts his sense of fraternal obligation to his fellow men, and makes him the good citizen without whom popular government would be a failure."

This observation is based upon experience which the former President says any one who has studied the life of a people from the standpoint of a responsible administrator must recognize.

Developing his argument for the necessity for the infusion of the religious spirit into the prevailing morality for the purpose of giving it life and persistent influence, Mr. Taft continues:

"Go to church!

"There are doubtless many individuals who live a moral and upright life, who are not conscious of religious faith or feeling or fervor; but however this may be in exceptional cases, it is the influence of religion and its vivifying quality that keeps the ideals of the race carrying guidance, were their suffering and sorrow, and brings their practices more nearly into conformity with their ideals."

WILL MOVE TO DISMISS $1,000,000 SHONTS SUIT

New York, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas has filed notice in the county clerk's office that a motion would be made October 4 to dismiss the complaint in the suit of Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, widow of the late Interborough Transit Company head, for $1,000,000. In her complaint, Mrs. Shonts charged that Mrs. Thomas had alienated the affections of her late husband, Theodore P. Shonts.

Olive Thomas' Friend Suicide by Drug

New York, Sept. 21.—The tragic influences of Olive Thomas' death in Paris provided the motive for the suicide of Miss Anna Daly, who took veronal at the Hotel Seville Saturday night, the police declared today.

Miss Daly and Miss Thomas had been friends from childhood. Both were born at McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh, and spent their girlhood there. They attended the same school and worked in the same store.

Miss Daly is the second woman friend of Olive Thomas to take her life since the noted film actress died in Paris. Both took poison.

GIRL OF 21 TO DIE FOR MURDER

President Refuses to Intervene in Case of Miss Berry at Washington

Washington, Sept. 21.—Josephine Berry, twenty-one-year-old colored girl for whom negro societies have been making a desperate fight, must die on the gallows October 15, President Wilson has refused to intervene.

The Berry girl, who has the slight figure of a child of ten and weighs only seventy pounds, is under sentence of death for the murder of another negress.

Her execution will be the second legal killing of a woman here since Washington was made the capital 120 years ago. The first was the execution of Mrs. Surratt, hanged in 1862 for her part in the Lincoln conspiracy.

Societies of women have been aiding negro organizations in their fight to have the sentence changed to life imprisonment. Until President Wilson flatly declined to intervene it was hoped this would be done.

BOSTON "HIDE KING" SUICIDE

Biar Crohan, Indicted by Suffolk Grand Jury, Takes Poison in Detroit

Detroit, Sept. 21.—"Hide King" Biar Crohan, head of the Great Western Hide Company of Boston, who was found unconscious in a berth of a Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company steamer, Sunday night, died in a hospital here from poison taken with suicidal intent.

Crohan, who gained the title of "Hide King" through his reputed corner of the entire American hide market in 1917, was despondent over the issuances of warrants charging him and Phil Faria, the secretary of the company of which he is president, with the embezzling of $43,752.

In Crohan's pockets were found newspaper clippings and a farewell note. The clippings told of his arrest in Grand Rapids, and the note of his intention to kill himself.

Crohan and Faria were arrested in Grand Rapids on September 13 on an indictment warrant issued in Boston, on complaint of the Anglo-American bank, as a result of Crohan's dealings with it and with the International Trust Company, also of Boston.

PROF. ALLYN WARNS OF "CANNING POWDERS"

Westfield, Sept. 21.—Prof. L. H. Allyn, famous pure food expert, has condemned so-called canning powders, used in putting up fruits and vegetables. The powders contain boric and salicylic acids, forbidden in food products sold in this country. Sterilization alone is necessary to properly "can" fruits and vegetables, according to Prof. Allyn, and heat, sugar, salt and water are sufficient. The use of canning powders may result disastrously to consumers, he says.

THE SHEPARD STORES

One-Half Off the Price of the Second Dress or Coat Length

The Opening Sale of Woolen Dress Goods of 1920-21

It is our determination to double our usual business in Woolen Dress Goods during September.

Our first act to accomplish this increase was to purchase an unusual quantity of the most desirable weaves for Fall—to make our stocks not only complete in variety but rich in yardage of wanted materials.

Our second act is to offer this wealth of goods at the most attractive price advantage possible. We are ready to pay for the big business we have set out to do.

This offer is open for one week only—Monday, September 20, through Saturday, September 25

This is the Plan—Please Read It Carefully

As an inducement to you to purchase now two dress or coat lengths of Goods, instead of waiting until later for the second, we offer the second at just one-half the regular price marked upon it.

You make your selection of Fall Woolen Dress Materials from our great new stocks—nothing will be withheld. All are marked at the normal low price.

This gives you a handsome saving on both your purchases.

To avoid misunderstanding, a 'dress or coat length' will be considered to be not less than—

3	yards of	54-in. material
3½	yds. of	48-in. material
4	yards of	44-in. material
5	yards of	40-in. material
6	yards of	36-in. material
7	yards of	27-in. material

In cases where the prices of the two materials selected differ, the half off will be taken from the least expensive of the two.

Two women, each buying one dress length, may take advantage of this sale by making their purchases together.

No Reduction is Made on a Third Dress Length

Over Twenty Thousand Yards of the Best Woolen Materials of This Season in the Most Wanted Colors, Including Black

STRIKES DECLINE IN N. E. AS ARMY OF JOBLESS GROWS

Unemployment increased in New England this Summer, strikes decreased and the number of recruits in the army broke all records. Though wages are still holding up, employment agencies reported today that there is a disposition on the part of laborers to accept work they formerly ignored.

That the labor shortage all over the country is vanishing is attested by reports from leading cities. "If you've got a job, keep it," is the advice of C. W. Starkey, chief of the State free employment agencies in Chicago.

"For the first time since the beginning of the war period there are more men looking for jobs than there are jobs to give them," he said. "The situation became noticeable about two weeks ago and has become more so each day. Only the most efficient can get jobs."

SEEK WORK IN BOSTON.

What he said goes for Boston, according to employment agents here. Wholesale curtailment in the mills this summer was reflected in a steady stream of unemployed to Boston for work. Shoe and textile plants are now running at greatly reduced operations and many thousands of men women are seeking employment.

Employment agents point out the fact that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company was able to mobilize 3,000 strike-breakers during the latest strike on its lines. A year ago it would have been next to impossible to get that many men.

During the war and in 1919 the farmers had difficulty in securing help to handle crops. This year the situation was easily handled. Curtailment in the automobile tire plants in Akron and other Ohio cities has thrown many men out of work. The same is true of the great automobile centres of Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and elsewhere.

Attention is also called to the increase in immigrants. The year 1907, when 1,285,349 landed at American ports, set the high mark. There was a great drop during the war, which added to the labor shortage. During the year ending July 1, 1925, only 141,132 came here, but the year after showed a total immigration of around 400,000 at New York.

REFUSE LOWER PAY.

Applications for work made at the State free employment office on Kneeland street increased from 13,777 in April to 15,678 in August. In June 16,682 persons sought work. On the other hand the demand for help has steadily dropped. Help was sought for 3,218 jobs in May, 2,979 in June, and 2,016 in July. The demand was for 2,729 in August, but so far this month only 1,440 calls were made, or at the monthly rate of less than 2,400.

Office and errand boys are especially particular in what they take. When the labor shortage was most acute older and stronger boys were employed in many jobs. With the reopening of the schools boys are not so plentiful. The prevailing scale today is around $12 per week.

All records for peace-time recruiting in Boston were broken in August, when 449 men joined the army. July was the previous record. In that month 285 men joined the colors. Many of these men had served in the war, and not being able to land jobs at their old lines returned to the service.

LESS ARMY REJECTIONS.

Captain I. H. Angell of the recruiting office in Scollay square said today that rejections for physical and other reasons have materially decreased. Ordinarily about 45 per cent. of applicants are turned away. Today only about 14 per cent.

Figures secured at the State Department of Labor showed a marked falling off in strikes.

During January, February and March, 1926, the monthly average was 43; in April there were 67, and in May 67 strikes. The number in June was 25, July 28, and in August was only 15. Up to September 13 only seven strikes were reported.

To Free Your Arms of Hair or Fuzz
(Boudoir Secrets)
No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair or fuzz can be quickly banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable hairs. This should be left on the skin about 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or stubble. Be sure you get the genuine delatone.

NEW GRIFFITH FILM ACME OF REALISM

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Ever since the "Birth of a Nation" I have come eagerly to the first night of a Griffith feature photoplay, and though none of the succeeding of the Civil War epic has had quite the punch, every one of them, "Intolerance," "Hearts of the World" and "Broken Blossoms," were superb dramas.

Last night at the Majestic Theatre "Way Down East," the latest, and in some respects, the greatest of the Griffith productions, was shown. The house was full. There was a big orchestra. Distinguished people abounded. The boxes were festooned with flim flam stars like Lillian Gish, Griffith himself and others. There was the same excitement and tenseness in the atmosphere that you find at first nights of big dramatic productions, and you see the best first nighters.

"Way Down East" was a melodrama of New England rural life by Lottie Blair Parker and Joseph Grismer, and it was first produced by A. Brady, more than twenty years ago. Those of us who think we know what is good and bad in the drama have had a lot of fun with "Way Down East."

It contained such elementary features as a missing marriage certificate, and an erring girl thrust out into a snowstorm. It was full of what the sophisticated call "hokum," but which the regular people who buy their way into a theatre consider realism and gobble up.

Despite numerous travesties on "Way Down East," the old melodrama traveled around the country for two decades, always drawing big houses and never failing to flood the theatre with tears.

There is always an explanation for such a success. Despite its crudeness, "Way Down East" told a tremendously human story, and that story got audiences who overlooked the lack of elegance in the technique of the play.

Griffith, who had reached the zenith of spectacular film prediction, was seeking something entirely different for his next great picture, and he recognized the mighty force of the theme of "Way Down East." For a sum said to be $175,000 he bought the play from W. A. Brady, and then he set to work to remove the gem from its rude setting and properly display it.

There is no need to tell this man in telling a story in the film. His touch is sharp and sure. His scenes flash so rapidly there is never a dull second. If you turn your head or close your eyes you miss something vital. The weird old melodrama is transformed into gripping and enthralling narrative. There were things in the play which made some people laugh while others were crying. When those scenes came in the film there was a unanimous use of handkerchiefs.

But it would not be Griffith if some thrills were not provided, and he has supplied a climax which is absolutely hair raising. He is not the paper snowstorm of the play, and the Los Angeles studios have showed Lillian Gish out into a real, raging blizzard, and added to the perils of the storm a voyage on floating ice drifting swiftly to a gigantic waterfall. David's pursuit of the heroine over the ice is one of the most exciting things ever done in motion. The audience burst into cheers at the rescue.

The acting of Lillian Gish in this piece is worthy of the greatest respect. I can well believe that John Barrymore told Griffith, as he said in a curtain speech, that Miss Gish had done some of the finest acting he had ever seen. This girl has developed, picture by picture, until she has no equal in depicting emotion on the screen. Such fine performers as Burr McIntosh, Richard Barthelmess, Edgar Nelson and Josephine Bernard do yeoman work in the picture.

The photography, too, is an advance on anything I have ever seen. Griffith's people have contrived to color one section of the film until it looks like a Sargent painting, while in other places they get the most exquisite effects by tinting.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE — "The Country Cousin," a play of exceptional fascination by Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, was the attraction presented by the capable Somerville Players yesterday at the Somerville Theatre. The story has an appeal that is seldom found in the present-day play, and the tart beliefs of the staid Ohioian and his right-thinking principals make a decided contrast when put side by side with the feverish and utterly selfish principals and existence of the really provincial and effete East, as represented by Manhattan.

Coming Events

ARLINGTON THEATRE — Rena Parker late prima donna of "Sis Flo," assisted by Eddie Garvin and almost the same brilliant Broadway cast, will be seen in "Betty Be Good," the cyclonic musical comedy that delighted thousands of Theatregoers during its eight weeks' engagement in Boston last season, at the Arlington Theatre for two weeks beginning October 4th.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Of special interest to Boston theatre goers is the announcement of the Boston Opera House of the forthcoming engagement of the Messrs. Shubert's superb all-star revival of Florodora. This joyous event is scheduled for a limited engagement of two weeks only, beginning Monday evening, October 4th.

GLOBE THEATRE — "The Cave Girl," a new American comedy by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, authors of "Adam and Eva" and "Polly With a Past," is announced as the attraction for next week at The Globe Theatre. Messrs. F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present this breezy comedy in the same lavish manner that it has enjoyed at the Longacre Theatre, New York, with a vast of unusually talented players, headed by Grace Valentine, John Cope, Martha Mayo, Madeline Marshall, Frankyn Hanna, Grant Stewart, Saxon Kling, Mark Smith, Arthur Barry, Brandon Peters and others.

"ABE POTASH" DELIGHTS AT PLYMOUTH

Abe Potash, the irresistibly human hero of Montague Glass' character stories and plays, made his debut to an audience at the Plymouth Theatre last night as "His Honor, Abe Potash," a new comedy in three acts by his creator and Jules Eckert Goodman.

The play is by far superior to the two previous comedies written around this new world-famous character. Barney Bernard who played in the original Potash dramatization "Potash and Perlmutter" and in the more recent comedy "Business Before Pleasure," again takes the leading role.

Mr. Bernard has more work to do in "His Honor, Abe Potash," than he had in the other plays, but he is equal to the task and though three long acts last night he kept the critical opening-night audience in a continuous stream of intermingling laughs and sobs.

The play, in itself, has a consistent plot in which Abe is elected Mayor of a small town, due to the machinations of a crooked ring, which seeks to use the easy-going clothing merchant as a tool.

Abe, however, unexpectedly proves to be a tartar and he fights the grafters and wins out, although he is forced to send his son to jail as a thief and to jeopardize his business to uphold his convictions.

The plot in itself, devoid of the Potashisms, which will live for a long time after the show has left town, is worthy of commendation. In all, the play assures one a night's excellent entertainment, and from its hearty reception last night has promise of a most successful run.

Mr. Bernard is ably assisted. Matilde Cottrelly appears as the wife, but not at all times the helpmate of the Hebrew mayor. Other leading parts are taken by Lucille Engdahl, George Barnum, Ted W. Gibson, Robert Cummings and James Westwood.

The Chickering Ampico Reproducing piano was used between the acts for the first time in any Boston theatre.

MIMIC WORLD HEADS BILL AT ORPHEUM

"The Mimic World," 1920 edition, which was offered yesterday at Loew's Orpheum Theatre for the first time in Boston, scored an unprecedented success and there is small wonder that for over a year it has been kept in and around New York playing new and return engagements.

The other acts on the program included Walter Kaufman, in lively tones and timely topics that compel laughter; Delbridge & Cremmer, in the rendition of some of their own compositions, and some snappy stories and the Two Corlions, in a novel display of eccentricities.

The photoplay attraction was the latest Paramount offering of Wallace Reid in "What's Your Hurry," best characterized as a "stealing thriller" of the type best portrayed by this daring star.

For the last half of the week "The Mimic World" will be retained and the balance of the program will be changed, featuring another Paramount attraction, "Half an Hour," with beautiful Dorothy Dalton.

N. E. A. A. U. OPENS FIRE ON MEN BEHIND OLYMPIC SCANDAL

ATHLETES WILL HAVE HEARING

Cuddy Leads in Attack on Unfit Members of Committee Who Handled Games Abroad

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

A movement was inaugurated at the annual meeting of the New England A. A. U., whereby those American Olympic officials responsible for conditions imposed upon our athletes will be called to account and full explanations of the conduct of the positions and possible demand for their resignations may result.

It was William Cuddy, president of the N. E. A. A. U., who first brought up the subject in his annual report. His suggestion promptly brought forward a resolution by William C. Proutt calling for the appointment of a committee of six to investigate the statements made by returning athletes and newspapermen and to make known their report at the coming annual meeting of the National A. A. U. at New Orleans and take such action as they may deem necessary.

From all parts of the assembly room at the St. Joseph's T. A. B. where the New England A. A. U. meeting was held, arose delegates demanding that the resolution be adopted.

Only one dissenting voice was heard in the course of the lengthy and spirited discourse and the resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority.

Members of Olympic Committee Condemned

Delegates Proutt, Charles Clapp, Benjamin Cothaus and Cleary all had much to say in condemnation of the treatment accorded the American Olympic team as Clay had learned of from the athletes; the last named speaker bringing out the fact that the same individuals who made up the Olympic Committee have been the subject of similar accusations in the past and declaring it was high time that the A. A. U. was rid of them.

The committee of six, who will also act as the New England delegates to the National meeting at New Orleans, are William Cuddy, William C. Proutt, T. J. Brady, Joseph L. Conway, M. F. Winston and Peter Holm, and within in a short time this committee will call together the New England members of the Olympic team and learn the full story of their treatment.

Cuddy Re-elected to Head N. E. A. A. U.

The officers of the N. E. A. A. U. were unanimously re-elected: William Cuddy as president; Lawrence Johnson as vice-president, and J. Frank Facey as secretary-treasurer.

The last named, together with Herbert Holm and George V. Brown, were elected members of the registration committee and Matt McGrath was elected official handicapper.

The treasurer's report showed the organization to be in excellent condition financially, and indicated that the New England contribution to the Olympic fund was $36,300.

The new athletic records accepted were as follows:

Five-mile run—Fred Faller, Dorchester Club, 25m. 55 4-5s.

Discus throw—J. W. Keller, B. A. A., 127 ft. 2 in.

Javelin throw—W. Tirri, Karhu Club, 184 ft. 3¾ in.

Plunge for distance—J. K. Anderson, unattached, 77 ft. 6 in.

50-yard swim—G. E. Alger, English H., 27 4-5s.

100-yard swim—G. E. Alger, 1m. 6 4-5s.

250-yard swim—D. Rubin, East Boston H. S., 2m. 35s.

440-yard relay swim—English High and Brookline High, 2m. 5s.

Plunge—K. Mann, Brookline High, 60 ft.

STIFF WORKOUT FOR B. U. FOOTBALL MEN

The Boston University football squad went through a hard practice session on the Tech field. Forty-two men took part in the work out. The first hour was put in practising line work, dummy tackling, falling on the ball, and offensive and defensive drill. The ends and backs practised kicking and forward passing. Teams A and B were formed and went through signal drill.

PURPLE BANKING ON BACKFIELD

Speed of Second Defence Men on Holy Cross Expected to Check Harvard

Worcester, Sept. 21.—Holy Cross will show the fastest backfield the college has ever produced for gridiron work in Saturday's opening football tilt with Harvard.

Kennedy, Gagnon, Simendinger and Flynn, while not so heavy as other college backfields, will show up in the speed line unless all signs fail. Holy Cross is relying on its speedy backfield entirely to hold down the Crimson score, with the hope of either Gagnon or Simendinger slipping through for a tally.

Second String Line Is Big Problem

The line has been the serious problem at Holy Cross, the toughest football puzzle that Coach O'Donnell has bucked up against in all his gridiron experience. The weakness of the team is in the substitute line. With the regular eleven going through the season without injury, O'Donnell would not worry. But he knows, as every football coach knows, that there are bound to be injuries, charley horse attacks, etc., which will prevent his first string men from performing.

While the lineup that will face Harvard Saturday has not been fully decided on as yet, it is intimated by close followers of the Purple eleven that the team will look very much as follows:

Young, l. e.; Golemheskl, l. t.; Cass, (captain), r. t.; Brannon, r. e.; Kennedy, Smith or Wallingford, q. b.; Gagnon, l. h. b.; Simendinger, r. h. b.; Flynn, f. b.

SPORT EDITORIAL

NO BUNK BOUTS FOR BOSTON.

THE Boxing Commission has scored its first official kayo.

The refusal of the new board to grant a sanction for a Dempsey-Moran battle shows Messrs. Foote, Buckley and Barrett as three tried and true friends of the game of give and take.

It was pointed out in these columns some few days ago, when Gunboat Smith was mentioned as an opponent for the champion in a bout here, that the whole affair was a huge joke.

Smith was sidetracked, but, not to be outdone, the promoters resurrected Moran and his name was substituted.

ANOTHER JOKE.

The aim of the majority of the present-day fight promoters and managers is to "slip something over"—to bunk the fans in their greed to clean up, with never a thought of tomorrow.

The fans have been helpless to battle the boxing bandits heretofore, but with the boxing board putting the skids under the "set-up" bouts the boys are sure to go strong for the B. B.

As a remedy for these so-called pugilistic Ponzies it is respectfully suggested that all future licenses and sanctions be refused these get-rich-quick promoters.

The best way to keep the game clean is to keep the pikers out.

HARVARD SQUAD GOING FAST

First and Second Teams Meet Today in First Battle of Year in Stadium

Harvard's second football team will wage its first battle of the year against the regulars in the Stadium this afternoon.

Head Coach Bob Fisher is carrying the Crimson varsity squad along at a break-neck speed to get the combination in working order for the clash with Holy Cross Saturday afternoon at Cambridge.

Coach Babe Felton and Ralph Horween put in their first appearances of the year at the field yesterday. Felton will assist Coach Billy Murray with the quarterbacks, and the elder Horween will be able to stay with the Harvard coaching staff only a week. Then he will leave for his home in Chicago.

Ralph Horween showed Eli Stillman, Mitch Gratwick and George Owen how to kick goals from the field. His work with these men resulted in noticeable improvement, and in the dummy scrimmage which followed Gratwick booted a field goal from the thirty-five-yard line.

Captain Arnold Horween got going yesterday, and banged off good gains through the line. One of his dashes off tackle netted twenty-five yards for the A team, but even then the regulars were unable to score against the battling boys.

RED SOX OUT TO HOLD INDIANS

Sam Jones Given Assignment on Mound; Bush Hard Hit by Cleveland

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—The nemesis of the Chicago White Sox, Sam Jones, was sent in to stop the Indians in their pennant drive today by Ed. Barrows. The Red Sox manager was satisfied that Jones would succeed where Herb Pennock and Joe Bush failed.

The Red Sox are just as anxious to stop the Indians as they were to halt the White Sox, and, judging by their performance Monday, they are trying every minute of the time. All Harvard coaching staff only a week. Then he will leave for his home in Chicago.

CUBS IN FINAL WITH BRAVES

Stallings and Tribe Depart for a Few Days Before Final Comeback

By NICK FLATLEY.

One game with the Cubs today and the Western invasion of National League clubs for the season is o'er. Business of relishing gasps of relief as the long breezes of Autumn. Too much is enough, as some wise bird remarked, even for baseball fans, and the falling are very sparse these days.

Chilly weather and cold baseball aren't what you could call a magnet for the National pastime, which attendance for this the early Fall anyhow, though there's money in it, of course, for the teams that are up there.

These Cubs, having toppled out of the race, aren't overly interested in business just now and the same goes for the Braves, who never were in the scrambling, save for a few brief weeks in Spring. But the memory of that surge isn't much of an inspiration just now.

These are the days when the National League managers are all declaring that the Dodgers should win the world's series, because of their great pitching staff, while the American skippers are stoutly unanimous in stating that either the Indians or the White Sox are well balanced enough to bring the world's title back to the young league, where, they say, it belongs anyhow.

The typewriters of baseball are massed for the annual assault on the dope, which will be unloosed with a loud clacking of keys just as soon as the verdict is won in the American League. The most crucial—we all most said important, which would never do—series of a wild-eyed year will be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Cleveland.

PICK SHEVLIN TO BEAT FLYNN

Roxbury Welterweight Favorite in Tonight's Battle at Triple A

ARMORY A. A. SELECTIONS.

Eddie Shevlin to beat Paddy Flynn. Shaver O'Brien to beat Young Quill.

By JACK CONWAY.

Paddy Flynn maintains that the old waiting game has given aggressiveness a slip-king once the dear old chimes sound at the opening of a ring contest. He will try to convince the fans that his theory is correct when he appears against Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics building tonight.

"Shevlin can't stand the gaff in a terrific battle," declared Flynn today after motoring in Boston from his training camp at North Reading. "Remember that Shevlin beat Shevlin led for a while as a result of his ability as a boxer. Kinky, however, kept forcing the issue at all times, and finally broke through his rival's defence and won by a knockout.

"I'm a member of that boxing school that believes in aggressiveness and the big punch. I'll chase Shevlin tonight until he gets big weary. Then I hope to mister him. Once without the Nate Siegel gave me a lot of trouble in the early rounds of our bout a week ago. But in the last part of the engagement I had things all my own way. Most boxers can't stand up tough fellows and I believe that Shevlin is an exception to the rule."

Everett fans and those followers of the game, who are strong along with the aggressive type of miller are picking Flynn to win.

Shevlin, however, will probably rule a betting favorite at post time. Eddie is one of the cleverest welterweights operating in this country. He is a past master of the art of hit and get away. He is also a splendid ring general and is eager to start his drive for the New England welterweight title by beating Flynn.

Shaver O'Brien Is to Meet Quill

Shaver citizen of South Boston will have Young Quill of Brockton as an opponent tonight. Here's a little tip-worth the while. Shaver has been such a mighty good performer. His draw with Nate Siegel proves this beyond a doubt. The thing that has prevented O'Brien from keeping with the big boys has been his failure to train properly. He now realizes he must workout at a gymnasium regularly if he hopes to box ten bouts. For the past three weeks he has trained faithfully and the result has been powerful weighing 125 pounds.

Quill has beaten Frank Tillis and Sonny Gilligan good performers and is of the opinion he will hand the South Boston southpaw a trimming.

There will also be two others. Young Tansey of Cambridge will mingle with Jimmy Dolan while Kid Albert Jones of Revere will try to dispose of Young George Sardner of Dorchester.

The bouts will get by the one-fall clash, without time limit.

An interesting event will be a demonstration of the various methods used in training by Malone Burns and a partner.

Promoter Tucker hopes to clinch a match between Wallace Ketchem and Johnny Lenz to round out the program.

BASEBALL MOGULS TO TESTIFY ON GAMBLING

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Baseball leaders have been summoned to appear before the grand jury next week to tell what they know of gambling in baseball and baseball games.

Those called are:

The grand jury will not only investigate baseball and baseball gambling, but will probe the last world series, about which stories of "fixed" games have been rife.

ALDRICH AND JORDAN STAR IN YALE PRACTICE

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—Mark Aldrich and Rube Jordan starred in Yale football practice yesterday, scoring the only two touchdowns made. Jordan dashed through the scrub rush line for the first two yards and crawled over the goal line for the tally. The scrubs were rallied as the varsity defensive line. Aldrich had taken the ball to the ten-yard line, but Aldrich went through the second varsity with splendid effect for the score. Aldrich tried three times for goal from placement.

Captain Callahan did not play. Billy Galvin succeeding him. Jack Gales, starting the only two touchdowns made. Jordan dashed through the scrub rush line for the first two yards and crawled over the goal line for the tally. The scrubs were rallied as the varsity defensive line. Aldrich had taken the ball to the ten-yard line, but Aldrich went through the second varsity with splendid effect for the score. Aldrich tried three times for goal from placement.

Captain Callahan did not play. Billy Galvin succeeding him. Jack Gales, tendon. Guy Hutchinson joined the coaches of the quarterbacks and will remain during the season.

BABE RUTH BREAKS RUNS SCORED RECORD

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Babe" Ruth shattered another major league record when he scored in the eleventh inning of the New York-St. Louis game. He broke the American League record for counting, running his total to 148. Ty Cobb held the previous record, having hung up a total of 147 runs in 1911.

PIMLICO FUTURITY TO HAVE $40,000 ADDED

Baltimore, Sept. 21.—Entry blanks have been sent out by the Maryland Jockey Club for the Pimlico Futurity to be run for the first time next year at Pimlico.

The race is to have $40,000 added, which would make it the richest stake run in America for two-year-olds. The distance will be one mile.

OPEN PLAY AT TWO CLUBS

Woodland Tournament Starts on Thursday, Oakley Next Saturday

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

The open tournaments at Woodland and Oakley will provide the final opportunities of the season for the amateur golfers who are fond of matches play golf. The qualifying rounds at Woodland on Thursday and wise golfers are obtaining starting time in advance so as to avoid a long wait at the first tee.

The Oakley tournament opens Saturday and will continue through next week. The amateurs have only been at Oakley upon this season and that was in an open to inter-club play event. Both the Woodland and Oakley courses are in good condition for the tournaments and fast fields are expected to take advantage of these final open meetings.

The Massachusetts Legion Cup team, headed by captain F. C. Newton, will go to Philadelphia next week to play an international match that was won by the New York and Pennsylvania teams at the Merchantville Country Club. There will be a 72-holes medal play tournament before the Legion Cup matches, in which some of the Massachusetts players plan to take part.

Bobby Jones has returned to his home in Atlanta after golfing in the Canadian championship in a number of days. He met with great success in the Canadian meeting for golfers from America to be a member of a best-ball team in which three wins from and Hall and Harry Vardon. Bobby will resume his studies at Georgia Tech, but will take time to play in the Southern open championship, which should be a big event.

B. C. FOOTBALL SQUAD WORKS OUT IN SECRET

The first secret practice of the season for the Boston College football squad was held by Coach Frank W. Hogan at Alumni field yesterday. The greater part of the day was devoted to the explaining of them to the players as well as the signals that will be used. The team was drilled in trick plays, the coach using two scrimmage lines and a dummy on the field to bring the plays out clearly.

KRAMER IS MATCHED TO MEET FRIEDMAN

Danny Kramer, the new sensation of the Eastern ranks, who was matched today to box Abe Friedman of this city, for ten rounds at 125 pounds at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, is a protege of Pete Herman, for the lightweight crown. The boys will clash before the club offering the best main event matinee, according to Manager Glass and Kramer is under his direction and Eddie Mack, mentor for Abe Friedman.

Kramer by his quick knockout of Johnny Russell, New York, showed that he is a comer and will be matched with an abundance of class and will be seen right along along waits to see. The Friedman-Kramer bout has been hanging fire for about six weeks.

AUTO GOLFERS TO BE BUSY NEXT MONDAY

Members of the Bay State Automobile Association, who failed to make good at Belmont will have another chance to show their skill at the Woodland golf club next Monday. The tournament is open to members and guests and valuable prizes will be awarded for best net and best gross scores.

Four dollars will be accepted, and luncheon may be had at the Woodland club. Players may tee off at 10 a. m.

JOSEPHS REGAINS TITLE BY BEATING FITZSIMMONS

Bobby Josephs of Boston regained the New England featherweight title by defeating Jimmy Fitzsimmons of Lowell in the ten-round main bout at the Lowell A. A. show.

Young Tansey, Roxbury, defeated Young McDonough, South Boston, in a fast six-round bout and Young Cassidy will be awarded four out of six rounds in the semi-windup.

HELIOTROPE

Stirring Serial of a Father's Sacrifice

"PERHAPS you can guess," he ventured, "why I ask I wanted you all to myself this afternoon."

"No, I can't, Jimmie. Tell me."

"Haven't you been wondering about our wedding ring? Well, I have it—got it right here," and he produced a small box which he held tantalizingly before her.

The very latest from Tiffany's—are here!" He pressed the catch and the magic box flew open, but there was no ring——

"Jimmy"—cried the the girl.

"Don't be alarmed—of all the stupidity—I left it on my dressing table after I showed it to Dad—I'll get it, won't take ten minutes, just across the park—will you wait?"

"Of course I'll wait—who wouldn't wait for a wedding ring!" laughed Alice as Jimmie hurried away.

Josephine Hasdock watched till he was out of sight then leisurely rising moved on slowly and seated herself on the same bench occupied by her daughter.

The manoeuvre acted, on Harry like a galvanic current. Slipping with swift strides he gained a vantage point behind the friendly bush that sheltered the bench, whereupon the two women sat, and there waited for his cue.

Used Atomizer

At the first word spoken by the woman to the girl, formal though it was, his atomizer left his pocket and there came on the afternoon air a perfume sickeningly sweet.

"Ah!" cried Alice, "what a strong smell of heliotrope. There must be some growing near."

The effect on the woman was startling. Rising, with her hand clutching at her throat, she looked this way and that in an agony of terror, and then, without waiting, walked rapidly away with fearful side glances, as though she feared some demon would rise out of the shrubbery and destroy her.

Alice, too, had risen, a little startled, but her own happiness crowded out every curious feeling and she sat down again, smiling in joyful introspection. It was this smile that led to the next interfluence of one of these habitual mashers who regard every pretty girl as certain to be smitten with their charms.

This particular Beau Brummell paused almost point blank and arrogated to himself a welcome in the open countenance of Alice dreaming of life with the man she loved. He raised his hat and seated himself, murmuring "Good afternoon" as he sat and pluming himself on this unexpected conquest.

Alice, catching sight of the unwelcome visitor, sidled along toward the edge of the bench, feeling eyes in her ignorance of such men that here was a menace.

Moved Nearer

The masher moved nearer as Harry, appreciating only too well the meaning of the little scene, emerged from behind the bush, caught the hooked end of his cane under the stranger's knee and with a vicious jerk whirled him round.

Then, calmly eyeing him, he took a seat between him and the girl to wait for further developments.

The angry masher could regard the intrusion in only one light. There was another man who had seen his attempted flirtation with the girl and wanted to rob him of his opportunity. He turned with a snarl on the interloper. "What do you mean by butting in here?"

"Beat it," said Harry, and there was a threat in his tone.

The other recognized superior force when he saw it, but bluff often does wonders. He started to bluff, when Harry, moving briskly along, crowded him off the bench to the ground.

As he picked himself up Harry rose and, swinging his stick, again suggested that he make himself scarce. This time the masher did not wait, nor did he even turn to see whether Harry had resumed his seat.

Alice showed her gratitude in a heartfelt "Thank you," and Harry lifted his hat, hardly daring to trust himself to look at her, for fear he would reveal his secret in spite of himself.

Having done her part, Alice resumed her train of thought, glancing now and again toward the hotel whither Jimmie had gone.

To the man beside her the moments were poignant with longing. To feel that at last he was sitting so close to his own daughter that his outstretched arm could reach her was in itself a blessing, a boon he had hardly dared to hope for back in the days when prison bars stood like grim sentinels between him and the world.

Stirred a Chord

The loveliness of the girl stirred a strange chord in he heart. He had never before realised what pride meant in its higher significance.

And the sudden knowledge that in his hands lay the happiness of one so young and beautiful further sanctified his purpose never to let her know his relationship.

In spite of himself tears came to his eyes, and as he raised his head Alice noticed and sympathized.

Making free to speak after his kindly interference on her behalf, she turned to ask in the sweetest of voices: "You're in some sort of trouble?"

Heliotrope Harry forgot it was not customary for young ladies to speak to strangers in public places. He dabbed at his eyes as though ashamed of his sudden yielding to emotion and shook his head, summoning a smile.

"Oh, no. I'm in no trouble, miss—"I'm very happy."

"I'm glad of that," she answered. "Isn't it wonderful to know happiness?"

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"BY Jingo! I've a cracker-jack of an idea," cried Tom Mason with boyish eagerness, which I'd never known he possessed.

"Are you going to tell us?" asked Irma Warren, with the pleased interest she seemed to have for every one.

We were dining at the most luxurious roof garden in town. Tom brought us there with a gesture of lavish generosity that marks all he does. And he reaped his reward in Miss Warren's amazed admiration for the tricks which produce roof-garden atmosphere and which don't elicit much notice from regular "diners-out," such as Tom and I.

"So you want to know my big idea?" he asked beaming at the girl; and then, striving to do the polite, he included me in his glance and tone. "Think my inspiration would mean anything to you?"

"Fire ahead!" I said.

"Here 'tis: You say Jimmie's staying out of town over Sunday. Well, Mrs. H., why shouldn't you have a restful country week-end? My new place—the one you helped me inspect, Miss Warren—is about ready for occupancy. And we're all good sports enough to put up with a few hardships and rough it, if need be. Are you beginning to get hep to the idea?"

Irma Warren was leaning forward with unfeigned rapture. Poor child! she'd never known so much excitement. With a quick putting of myself in her place, I exclaimed:

"Yes—yes! Go on, Tom. We'll dispense with the rhetoric and the suspensive element and take the meat of your story."

"It's this," said Tom. "Why can't you two girls, with Miss Warren's uncle, and Phoebe and Neal, come up to Hidden Brook for a week-end holiday?"

For a Week-End

"Could we?" asked Irma Warren, shyly, turning rapturous eyes to me.

How, on the one hand, I hated to say "No!" How, on the other, I couldn't say "Yes"!

To go off for a house party without Jim wasn't a thing I'd consider. Proper as it might be called, it had an unchaperoned look I couldn't tolerate. And there was another consideration. It hadn't a right to weigh with me for a minute—it was the thought of Daisy Condon sneaking out of the shadowy corner of another restaurant the night before; Daisy speaking to Tom with an unexplained air of understanding—despite her loneliness and lack of society and young companions. Irma Warren, sweet, dignified niece of Graham Haidane, would get her chance in life. But Daisy Condon worried me, haunted me, somehow. She was, you might say, the last straw. And that last straw weighed down the balance overwhelmingly against any thought of Tom's house-party.

"I can't go," I said. "It's impossible."

"Is it that Jim might get back?" asked Tom, sticking it out, as usual, for the thing that was denied him. "You know he could join us—unless you want an undisturbed reunion."

"Jim may get back, but I doubt it," I replied. "No—I just can't make it. A lot of little reasons that wouldn't be understandable to anyone but myself."

"Perhaps you'd come anyway," suggested Tom, turning eagerly to Miss Warren. "Your uncle's a chaperon, you know."

Another Denial.

"I've been thoughtless again," and, saying that, Irma Warren shook her head gravely. "I forgot, uncle. There's his Sunday chess game. And he's so comfortable and happy at home—so little inclined to enjoy change. I can't leave him."

That ended it; and Tom, who seldom brooks denial until he has tried wearing down all defenses, accepted the girl's simple word as final. It amazed me—I was quite unlike a headlong, self-seeking person I'd known.

Scriptural Deficiencies

Young Tam Mackay had just returned from a painful interview with the minister, to whom he had said, in reply to a question, that there were one hundred Commandments. Upon meeting another youth on his way to the minister's he asked, "An' if he asks you how many Commandments there are, what will ye say?" "Say"" replied the youth, "Why, ten, o' course." "Ten? Ye will try him wi' ten? I tried him wi' a hundred and he wasn't satisfied."

The Restless Sex

SHE sat up, covering her face with both hands.

"Don't ask me! Don't talk about it! There are things I can't tell you—things I can't do, no matter what happens to me—no matter whether I am unhappy—whether Jim is——"

"Oh, Helen! Helen! There's something that happened which I can't ever forget. It terrifies me. There's no way out of this marriage for me—there's no way! No way!" she repeated desolately. . . . "And I'm so deeply in love—so deeply—deeply——"

She flung herself on her face and buried her head in her arms.

"Just let me alone," she sobbed. "I can't talk about it. I—I'm glad you're happy, dear. But please go out, now!"

Still a Bold Wooer

Helen rose and stood for a moment looking down at the slender figure in its jewelled kimono and its tumbled splendor of chestnut hair. Then she went out very quietly.

On the porch her audacious young man and Cleland were smoking and consulting time-tables, and she gave the former a swift glance which questioned his intentions. He seemed to comprehend, for he said:

"It's Jim. He's been talking to Oswald on the long distance wire, and he's going down to town to see the model that Oswald has made."

"Are you going too?" she asked.

"Not until you do," he said boldly.

Helen blushed furiously and glanced at Cleland, but he had not paid any attention, apparently, for he rose with an absent air and went into the house.

"Steve!" he called from the foot of the stairs. "I'm going to town tonight, if you don't mind."

There was no answer. He ran lightly up the stairs and glanced through her door, which was partly open. Then he went in.

She did not hear him, nor was she aware of his presence until she felt his questioning hand on her tumbled hair. Then she turned over, looked up into his anxious face, stretched out her arms to him in a sudden passion of loneliness and longing, and drew him convulsively to her breast with a little sob of surrender. And the next instant she had slipped through his arms to the floor, sprang to her feet, and now stood breathing fast and unevenly as he rose, half dazed, to confront her.

Rather Dangerous

"Jim," she said unsteadily, "I had better go back. I'm losing my head here with you—here under dad's roof. Do you hear what I say? I can't trust myself. I can't remain here and tear dad's honor to shreds just because I've gone mad about you. . . . I'm going back."

"Where?"

"To Gerwald."

"What!"

Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER XIX.

HARWOOD had been out of town for sometime on business and Ann had been going regularly to her singing lessons with Savoni. One day the great singer lost patience with her and said: "There is no use in your trying to be a singer. To sing means hard work and long years of practise. You do not like hard work and you do not practise enough. You think more of pretty clothes than you do of music. A career in singing means privation and work, work, work. You are not fitted for it, you have an average voice but it would be long, tiresome years before you could accomplish anything with it.

"I tell you these things because I want to be fair to you and do not want to see you wasting your time. Harwood pays me a great deal of money to teach you, but I don't care for the money, I have plenty. It's only a passing whim of his anyway. Don't think me hard, little girl, but I tell you the truth, just as I would tell my own daughter, now in France, and who is about your age.

"If you wish to get along in the world and do something, pick out some other career, for singing is a hard row to hoe except for a very lucky few."

At the door Savoni patted Ann on the shoulder saying: "Now don't take it too hard, I have only told you the truth to save you wasted effort, some day you will realize I am right—goodbye."

Ann was partly stunned and her eyes full of tears as she waited at the elevator thinking over the words Savoni had said to her. Ann, like many other girls, could not realize that in any career to be a success one must work, continually work, to reach the goal they are after. "I WILL be something, I'll show him yet," she muttered, and her pretty little hands clenched tight.

Removing Ugly Hairs—Entirely New Method

(Actually Removes the Roots)

The question is often asked whether a really permanent method of removing hair exists, and the answer has heretofore been very unsatisfactory. Fortunately, there's a new and remarkable process that really removes every hair entire, root and all! It is different from and far better than electricity, depilatories, the razor, or any other method. If you'd like to try it, just get a stick of plastacine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions, and with your own eyes see the hair roots come out! Roots and all removed quickly, easily, leaving the skin perfectly smooth and hair-free.

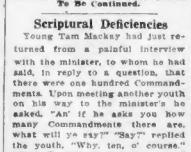
Plastacine is non-irritating, odorless, and as harmless you could eat it!—Advertisement.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.



Fat That Shows Soon Disappears

Prominent fat that comes and stays where it is is not needed in a burden, a hindrance to activity, and a curb upon pleasure. Many forms of advice to reduce weight have been advanced, such as dieting, hard work, excessive exercise, etc., all of which are either unpleasant or dangerous.

The latest, most modern and pleasant way to take off burdensome fat, is to take, after each meal and at bedtime, a Marmola Prescription Tablet. It's entirely safe and harmless as the famous Marmola Prescription which they take the place of.

To get rid of fat at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week, simply take one of these little tablets after each meal and at bedtime until you have reduced your weight to where you want it. No wrinkles or flabbiness will remain to show where the fat came off.

They are for sale by all druggists at $1 for a good size box. If you prefer to have them come to you direct by mail, prepaid, in plain sealed cover, send amount to the Marmola Co., 67 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich., and old roughers to dieting, exercise and fat. Be yourself, slim, trim and attractive.

PIMPLES COVERED BABY'S FACE

Itching and Burning Terrible. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My baby's face was covered with pimples that were hard, large, and red. They broke and water ran out and then they scaled over. The itching and burning were terrible and caused him to scratch and irritate his face. He could not sleep and was cross and fretful.

"A friend told me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. M. Rogers, 5 School St., Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 13, 1920.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health often when all else fails.

Sample each free by mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Thorpe

THORPE VARIATIONS — Thorp, Throp, Torpy, Tarpy, Dorf, Dorfman, Dorfner.

RACIAL ORIGIN—English, also Irish and German.

SOURCE—A place, also a given name.

HERE is a group of family names, all related, either through development from the same source or through interchangeability resulting from similar spelling.

In the old Anglo-Saxon tongue of England a "thorp" was a village. From the same word root which gave the Anglo-Saxons "thorp" the Germanic races on the continent, in what is now Germany, developed the word "dorff," with the same meaning. The connection between the two is not obvious to the casual eye, but when you compare corresponding words in English and German you will be surprised how often an English "th" is the equivalent of a German "d," and an English "p" merely has to be replaced by a "pf" or an "f" or "v" sound to make the words virtually identical.

In both English and German this word for village is more often incorporated with the names of specific towns in the formation of family names. Instances are "Oglethorp" and "Ludendorff," but the complete list of variations in these various compounds could not possibly be covered in a single article.

But without considering the numerous compounds, the English form of the family name almost invariably takes its origin from such form as "Anton de la Thorp."

The German Dorf is generally a shortening of Dorfmann or Dorfner, meaning "villager."

The Irish forms of Thorpe, Thorp, Torpy and Tarpy are variations from "O'Thorpe," which is derived from the Irish given name of "Thorp," which has a meaning of "bulk" or "great size."

A Story of the East

Once upon a time a certain Turk named Ali went to Nasradin Hodja, the wise man of Turkey, and complained with tears in his eyes that his last hope had fled, since the previous night his only donkey had been stolen. Nasradin Hodja calmed the man with kind words and assured him that he would find his donkey the very next day. Accordingly, the next day, which happened to be a Friday—the Sabbath of Turks—Nasradin Hodja summoned all the inhabitants of the village, as he was in the habit of doing every Friday, and as usual delivered his speech about the Koran, finishing with the words, "Who among you knows how often an Englishman has to be replaced by a "pf" or an "f" or "v" sound to make the words virtually identical. has never stolen, never wished or done harm to his neighbors and country-fellows, has never disobeyed his parents, has never drunk any intoxicating liquors, never smoked, let that man come and stand by my side!"

A robust young peasant detached himself from the crowd and with a smile boldly advanced toward the speaker. Nasradin Hodja calmly turned toward Ali, who was still weeping over the loss of his donkey, and said:

"Cease crying! Your troubles are at an end—with the help of the Prophet we have found him."

And he handed over to Ali the robust-looking peasant!

Beauty Charm

Every day we see faces that would be beautiful but for some skin blemish, however slight it may be. Even one little pimple spoils an otherwise perfect complexion and a pretty face.

No one need suffer the embarrassment of pimples, sun-freckles, tan, sunburn, or a dark, sallow, motley complexion. BLACK and WHITE Ointment and Soap will remove these unsightly skin blemishes, make the skin clear and soft with the tint of youth. This Beauty Treatment is easy to use and as delightful as face creams and lotions.

BLACK and WHITE Ointment has other uses, too—for the relief of eczemic conditions of the skin, insect bites, pimples, tetter, for the removal of corns, callouses and skin abrasions. It's so very useful that a good sized box should be kept handy in every home

Any dealer can supply BLACK and WHITE Ointment at 25c—the 50c size, too, containing three times as much as the small. Write Dept. B, Plough Chemical Company, Memphis, Tenn., for free sample and literature.

'BROKEN WING' THRILLS AT PARK SQ.

Dramatic situations are plentiful in "The Broken Wing," a comedy-drama by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard which opened last night at the Park Square Theatre.

Each of the four acts ends with a bang, and the audience finds itself in a position similar to when the end of an especially gripping serial moving picture comes to the line "to be continued in our next." The plot is carefully concealed, and when it is finally exploded in the last act a sigh of relief goes over the audience, followed by applause.

The authors have taken Mexico for the scene, and the opportunities that bristling cactus offer are made the best of by them. The story has to do with one Captain Ingenuous Del Sarto, who is in love with Ines Villers.

She has a desire to marry a "gringo," and at the proper moment, Captain Philip Marvin of the American aviation corps drops down through the roof of her house in his airplane.

The other characters in his mind's eye, but not so blank that he cannot realize his affection for the Mexican girl. Complications arise between Captain Marvin and Captain Del Sarto, who takes delight in disposing of "gringoes" via the revolver route.

Plays That Remain

WILBUR THEATRE—These are the golden days at the Wilbur. Theyre, where it continues to draw audiences of capacity dimensions. This attraction is the best musical comedy seen in years and is deserving of the patronage failing to rush to it. An extra box office has been opened to take care of the advance sale.

SHUBERT THEATRE—That a popular success of unquestioned proportions has been scored by "Kissing Time," at the Shubert Theatre, is evident by the crowded houses which greet the play at every performance.

GLOBE THEATRE—This is the last week of "Tiller Girls" the delightful musical comedy that has brought new life to the Globe. They are and inaugurated it again as a members of the group of all-girl classy Boston playhouses. The production goes direct from here to the Longacre Theatre, New York.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—While New York sleeps" has entered into the third week of its prosperous run at the Boston Opera House, where countless thousands have viewed it and lent their voices in its praise.

COLONIAL THEATRE—The Hitchy-Koo 1920 Revue, with Hitchcock, Sutherland and Buckley, continues another week of big business.

TREMONT THEATRE—This is the last week of the charming Cape Cod comedy "Shavings."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Walker Whiteside began a second week in the exciting romantic comedy "The Master of Ballantrae," dramatized from the R. L. Stevenson novel.

FIREWORKS EXHIBITION DRAWS BIG CROWD

The second production of "Europe in Battle and Fire," a spectacular and brilliant fireworks display, was presented before a large and appreciative audience at the Revere Beach reservation last night.

The second night was in marked contrast with the opening night. Those present were unanimous in their approval and said that this display was one of the most brilliant ever seen in the city.

In a broadcasting manner the bursting of bombs of Air was produced. Some of the additional features listed for tonight's display will be the Roman standing races and mortar practice.

Thomas Phillips, the pioneer, was timed with the aquaplane during the audience last night. Though as the initial performance was somewhat delayed over the week, the remaining days of the week promise many novel displays for those who attend, he says.

The fireworks are under the personal supervision of John Serpico, president of the International Fireworks Company, and is in Boston to take charge of the production.

PARIS BOURSE WEAKNESS BLAMED ON GOVERNMENT

By Universal Service.

Paris, Sept. 21.—It was the consensus of Paris brokers here that Wall Street and non-professional American market should not interpret too seriously the remarkable weakness of the list on the Paris Bourse the last three days. This, it is held, is due to government pressure on the banks to advise all customers to sell everything in order to create a distrust in securities and thus provoke an altogether unfounded feeling of pessimism for all of the industrials, railroads, mines and oils, calculating that this would drive all money into the new French government loan.

Are Stocks Headed Up or Down?

After a decline in security prices extending over a period of nearly a year, due to industrial deflation, it is of interest to know whether the downward movement has culminated, or whether the strong rally which has recently taken place represents a bulge preparatory to a further decline.

In view of the extreme importance of this question, we have attempted to indicate the probable trend of the market over the balance of the year in an editorial appearing in our current Market Review.

This publication, which currently discusses developments in industrial, oil and mining companies, will be sent to anyone free upon request.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Sept. 21.—The Gulf storm held this morning's cotton market steady at an advance of 5 points and first prices ranged from 17 points. The market at New Orleans was stronger, moving up about 25 points on reports that the storm was due to reach the Gulf coast tomorrow. Early buying by mill leans and trade interests were buyers, apparently influenced by unfavorable news regarding the English coal later situation or the closing of the Manchester yarn and cloth offices until the 30th. The market held firm and rising during the first hour, but after that opening offers were: October, 28.85; December, 28.36; January, 25.00; March, 24.91; May, 25.35; July, 25.05.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, Sept. 21.—The sub-treasury gained $179,000 from the banks on Monday, reducing the cash net loss since Friday to $52,066.

RAIL AND OIL ISSUES UP

Market Rallies in the Second Hour and Morning Trading Is Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, there having been a rally in the second hour in which rails and oils were leaders. Among rails to sell at higher prices were Wisconsin Central, Pere Marquette and Pittsburgh & West Virginia. Wickwire was an industrial to sell at a 1920 high. Strongest oils were Mexican Petroleum, Pan American and Houston, they having reversed their early position.

The market was active, first hour transactions aggregating nearly 180,000 shares. Call money opened at 7 per cent. Among sterling bills on exchange quotations were demand sterling 13.58½, gaining off 1½ cents, francs demand 9.06?7, up 3.06?2 line 5.04?5, off 1.06?1, marks 3.01?7, up 1.00?2.

RECEDED AT OUTSET.

A recessional marked the opening and it continued for thirty minutes or so before demand exceeded offerings. But as a rule the downward movement was slow and prices were increased only. Kelly-Springfield was an exception. It declining seven points. Tire issues were a weak class and quite the firmest, although the latter could not be called strong. The market rallied later in the second hour and at the end of that period was irregular with no price changes. There was nothing in overnight news or developments to account for the falling prices at the opening today. The movement was due to a continuation of the profit taking which marked the close of the market yesterday. Oils were weak as a group, Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch and Houston showing the largest early losses. Crucible soon became the strongest steel. St. Louis and Southwestern sold at a high for the year. Retail stores and Tobacco Products were among issues to advance a point or more. Tobaccos, in fact, ruled higher.

INDUSTRIALS DISAPPOINTED.

Some disappointment was expressed because industrials have not moved up with rails and traders say that the market will have to display more breadth before it can be described as bullish. Short interest has largged and this has had a restraining influence. Orders for steel are diminishing, it is reported and it is predicted that the U. S. Steel Corporation will report for this month a further decrease in unfilled tonnage. Building operations are decreasing and while there is more activity in some industries there is curtailment in others. More ease in regard to money is attributed to a slowing down of manufacturing and trade. It is believed in some quarters, however, that rates will go up again before 1920 is over. The outlook for next year is considered favorable by most bankers.

Westinghouse Stock Increase

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. stockholders will hold a special meeting on November 18 to act on increasing indebtedness by $30,000,000 and increasing stock from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000, the additional stock to be common.

Latest Silver Purchase

The latest silver purchase by the government under the Pittman Act is called for $50,000 ounces and brought the amount purchased on this movement up to 14,965,647 ounces.

Corporation Earnings

The Texas & Pacific reports for last year net income after taxes and charges $1,800,980, against $1,981,320 in 1918.

Sales for the first fortnight of this month by the United States Steel Corporation show a decrease of $825,587, or 39 per cent., from the same period last year, which was the largest increase for any similar period in the company's history.

Sales for the first half of 1920 by Lima Locomotive Co., Ltd., reports total income $2,566,672, including profits $1,499,538; dividends, $864,000; surplus, $635,672.

The H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Co. did a business for the year ended July 31 of $14,561,994, against $6,500,000 reported with $14,561,994 for the corresponding period last year. The increase was 124 per cent.

Central Leather deficit after charges and taxes in first six months of 1920 was $1,708,902, and deficit after dividend was $3,928,948.

LOCAL MARKET IS NARROW

Most Early Trading Is in Boston Mexican Petroleum; More Breadth to Curb

At the opening of the Boston market most of the issues were higher, but there were enough to show losses to make the list look irregular. Boston Mexican Petroleum was an early feature. It led in activity and was decidedly weak. It was depressed by the receipt by the treasurer of the concern of a telegram reading: "Production of Harmon well reduced 10,000 barrels daily on account of sediment showing."

The price range of the market was narrow. United Shoe was up a point during the forenoon, while Waltham Watch was off a point. Most fluctuations were small.

Among issues to make fractional gains were American Woolen preferred, Calumet & Arizona, Copper Range, New Haven, Eastern Manufacturing, Swift International and International Products.

Issues to show small losses included Atlas Tack, North Butte, Bigheart, Orpheum and National Leather.

CURB MARKET BROADER.

The Curb market had more breadth at the opening and the early price movement was improved. Leaders were Merrimac Development and Ajax Rubber. Strong issues at the start included Boston & Montana, Canada Mexico, Hecla Divide, Mexican Silver, Silver Reef, Mutual and Verde Mines. Among weak ones were Arizona Tip Top, Black Hawn, Crystal, Madonna and Republic Navigation.

At the end of an hour Merrimac Development was off 2 cents at 40 cents, Boston & Montana 1 cent at 75 cents, Tip Top 3 cents at 25 cents, and Crystal 1 cent at 40 cents. Eureka was up 2 cents at 35, Black Hawk 1 cent at 40 cents, Republic Navigation ¼ at 11¼ and Canada Mexico 1 at 9.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Wheat opened 1¢ higher. Corn opened ¼@¾¢ lower. Oats were unchanged to ¼¢ lower. Sept. lard was 2¢ lower. Opening prices were: Wheat—Sept., 139½@139¾; March, 2.04¾@2.05. Corn—Sept., 1.07¾@1.07¾; March, 1.07¾@1.07¾. Oats—Sept., 71¾@71¾; Dec., 61¾@62¾. Lard—Sept., 20.60@20.65.

ABIE IS SEEN IN COMEDY AT ARLINGTON

Followers of the "Abie, the Agent" cartoons, which are a daily feature of the Boston American, had an opportunity last night to see Abie as a very animated personage upon the stage of the Arlington Theatre in George Y. Hobart's new comedy drama, "Abie, the Agent."

Abie is played by Nick Adams, who has caught the spirit of Harry Hershfield's entertaining character to a degree, and he succeeded in furnishing the audience with many smiles. Adams is ably supported by some friends who are known to readers of the Hershfield pictures, and a few others who have been added by the author to fill out the drama.

The plot leads Abie into vicissitudes of fortune; in love and in finance, but, as might be expected, he emerges in the final act with plenty of money and the girl in the case weeping upon his shoulder, while Minsk stands by in most approving attitude. Reba, the girl, is well played by Laura Walker.

Lena, played by Francesca Rotoli, Abie's sister, gives the agent considerable worry because of her extravagant notions, but he indulges her in her whims, even to the extent of a most elaborate and expensive coat, although he insisted, more than once, that she "take the cost back."

Abie is the owner of a restaurant, a motion picture theatre, and an automobile manufacturing concern. His rival for Reba's affection attempts to ruin him by introducing legislation which would prohibit the use of Abie's right hand drive automobiles, but his brother-in-law, an Englishman, comes to the rescue with the announcement that he has secured a London concern which is in the market for right hand drive cars.

Reba, played by Ralph J. Locke, Abie's rival, is discredited when he is arrested by federal agents for conducting a get-rich-quick scheme, in which he promised his clients fifty per cent. a month profit.

Other Theatres

PARK THEATRE—"Homespun Folks," the first Hoosier picture of the Associated Producers' Corporation, was presented at the Park Theatre yesterday with Lloyd Hughes as the featured player, who, in the role of Joel Webster, the ambitious young son of Caleb Webster, a stern old father, is turned from his home because of his desire to do better. A move not approved by his old-fashioned father, who will not sanction any "book larnin'" in his household.

"Under Northern Lights," the other half of the program, is a story of the famous Royal Mounted Police. Douglas McLeod, a constable in this force, is in love with Suzanne Pierchards. An unfortunate love affair carried on between a gambler and a young Indian girl reveals certain facts which give the constable a chance to release Suzanne's brother by thus violating his oath. So he lets him escape and takes a bullet as his reward when a brother officer fires at the fleeing man.

BROADWAY THEATRE—It is doubtful if any new theatre in Boston ever established its widespread popularity as quickly as the Broadway Theatre, South Boston's own million-dollar vaudeville and motion picture palace. The program for this week are especially inviting.

MODERN AND BEACON—Bert Lytell, in "The Price of Redemption," opened yesterday at a man who conquered himself, was seen yesterday at the Modern and Beacon theatres in Wanda Hawley, in her comedy, "Food for Scandal," is also seen.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—Charles Ray's version of "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," the George M. Cohan classic which he has adapted to the screen, is kept close to the original form which had such a tremendous success during the years of its stage vogue. It is being shown at Gordon's Old South Theatre.

GORDON'S SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA —"Shield of Virtue," which had its initial local performance yesterday at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia, proves one of things about which pictured that they have really risen to take an equal place in dramatic expression with the stage, and that May Allison is capable of emotional as well as a lighter and sprightlier role.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA — In its theme, Constance Talmadge's latest First National Attraction, "Perfect Woman," shown at Gordon's Olympia, is entirely different from anything that has been given as a subject for humorous photoplays.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—In addition to five acts of entertainment that is genuinely and highly pleasing, the program for the first half of the week at Lowe's Columbia Theatre offers Douglas MacLean in his latest and most delightful photoplay, "Let's Be Fashionable," the picture with a hundred per cent. romance and comedy.

GAIETY THEATRE—If all the shows at the Gayety Theatre this season are as good an "Twinkle Toes" is, a notable season of burlesque is ahead. The size and enthusiasm of the audience that greeted the first opening performances yesterday indicated that there are many persons in Boston who welcome the return of this show as one of the big events of the year. Ralph Austin comes to the front from vaudeville, bringing a ridiculously funny style. He and Tom Smith make a most hilarious pair whenever they come into view.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Rich in pretty girls, Lew Talbot's show opened a week's engagement at Waldron's Casino yesterday, featuring the greatest burlesque Lew Talbot has ever had better than ever in the three burlettas, "The Boardwalk Follies," "Medical Bonehead," and "The Dream Man." The books were compiled by the producer, Jack Singer, assisted by Kelly's peculiar dope character. The scenery and costumes are out of the ordinary.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—Another tip-top bill of vaudeville and photoplays is characterizing yesterday's offerings at the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester. There were four splendid acts of up-to-date and appealing vaudeville, with lots of snap and pep to every number. Pretty and dainty Hilda Shirley Mason is shown in that splendid picture "The Little Wanderer," which has made for her hosts of new friends.

SPANISH DRIVES OUT GERMAN

Kaiser's Tongue, Once Popular in Schools Here, Now in Disfavor

Boston pupils are largely following the lead of New York pupils in electing Spanish to take the place of the once popular German. Except in schools preparing for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Superintendent of Schools Frank Thompson points out, German is out of favor and Spanish has taken its place.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he points out, has not abandoned German because so many of the scientific works are printed in German. Neither did Boston, not even at the height of the agitation, drop German as a school study.

This, Superintendent Thompson points out, places Boston in the list of the few cities which hold out. However, Spanish has been in Boston schools, a full course, for four-teen years.

"Fourteen years ago," says Mr. Thompson, "the study of Spanish was begun at the High School of Commerce. This was due to the work of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. At that time the arguments, you might even say the propaganda, for the study of Spanish first took possession of our city. 'Up then French and German had been the favorite electives languages in the high schools. Now French and Spanish lead.

"Of course, as we who are at all familiar with the schools know, the pupils have the right of choice as to modern languages.

"We have a full high school course of Spanish. Pupils may begin this study in the seventh and eighth grades. There are many reasons why they should begin it at an early age, and thirteen a child has greater phonetic facility than at a larger age. It seems too bad that German is discontinued, but its diminution as a popular elective study, in Boston, at least, rests wholly with the pupils."

BOSTON-HAVANA BOAT LINE STARTS NEXT WEEK

The Pan-American Terminal & Dock Corporation will establish a new steamship service from Boston to Havana with the departure from Pier 4, New Haven docks, South Boston, of the American steamer Seneca on September 25. Sailings will take place from here at intervals of ten days and more frequently as the volume of patronage increases. The steamer Bethlehem also has been assigned to the route.

"Go and Get It"

"Go and Get It," Marshall Neilan's remarkably vivid photoplay of newspaper life, began an engagement at Tremont Temple yesterday afternoon. This picture was made in Los Angeles and the wonderful plant of the Los Angeles Examiner was loaned by William Randolph Hearst for the newspaper scenes. The picture will be reviewed at length in Wednesday's American.

Peters Sets a Good Example

And the Boston Post Says a Good Word for Our Bring-Your-Luncheon-From-Home Club. Anybody Can Join and the Returns Are Better Health and (at Least) One Hundred Per Cent.

Our very much esteemed contemporary and good friend, the Boston Post, finds in one of the New York newspapers a Boston dispatch describing the growth of the Boston American's Bring-Your-Luncheon-From-Home Club and telling of an important acquisition to its membership in the person of Mayor Peters.

Says the Boston Post:

The chief executive of this city sets an example which might well be followed by less exalted persons. Anybody who has a real home can do the same thing and can help protest against the OUTRAGEOUS profiteering that is unquestionably going on in many of Boston's lunch places. If a considerable number of people thus acted they might—we do not say they would, but they might—force down some of the absurd prices for food.

We may say to the esteemed Post—it is ALWAYS gratifying to have the sympathy and support of the Post—that a considerable number of Bostonians already has joined the bring-your-luncheon-from-home movement. More are joining every day. The protest which began in Boston on the introduction of blueberry pie at twenty cents the cut and six cuts to a pie promises to have results altogether satisfactory to those who, up to that time, had been submitting patiently to robbery at the hands of men who own luncheon rooms.

The Boston movement was "front-paged" yesterday in two New York dailies. But that is by no means important. The important thing is to keep up the good work. Bring your noonday luncheon from home if possible. Otherwise, go "restaurant-shopping." Never return to the lunch room where you KNOW you have been robbed.

Was It a Convention?

When is a political convention not a political convention?

Here are some of the more popularly known answers: When it is packed. When it is a joke. When it is a burlesque. When it is bossed. When it defeats the majority will of the party. When it is cut and dried.

What kind of a convention was that held by the Democrats in Springfield? Here are the elements to consider in answering:

It was entitled to 2,081 delegates. It was reported that 500 credentials had been presented. BY ACTUAL COUNT THERE WERE 192 PEOPLE IN THE HALL AT THE TIME.

One group of delegates was composed of Federal officeholders and friends, a prominent member being a postmaster, who joined loudly in the cries of "Throw him out" when delegates spoke against the resolutions endorsing the League of Nations.

Another group consisted of State committeemen and employes of Democratic State headquarters, together with friends who were not duly elected delegates.

The third group was composed of residents of the four western counties. There were not more than a dozen from the other ten counties.

By any stretch of the imagination, could such a gathering be considered a real or binding Democratic convention? The answer at the polls will prove an interesting study.

Important Horseshoes

The Five Socialists, Etc.

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

If the criminals responsible for the Wall street explosion are caught, that may be due to their failure to remove the shoes of the horse that they drove. No criminal can think of everything, and a very small mistake may lead to identification.

The man that attempted to kill Russell Sage with dynamite was identified by a button on his clothing.

Carlyle Harris was convicted of murdering his girl wife, because he had left in the box that he had given her a pill containing poison. His theory was that it would protect him by throwing responsibility on the druggist.

If identification by the blacksmith of the shoes on the horse that hauled the explosives to Wall street should cause the arrest of the criminal, it will be another proof that crime can never be made safe.

Five Socialists were expelled from the Legislature of New York by order of gentlemen who, sooner or later, will learn that the way to deal intelligently with discontent is not by main force.

The five Socialists have been re-elected, not because all citizens that voted for them agree with their doctrines, but because a majority believe that the people voting have a right to choose their own representatives.

Mr. Barnes, head of New York's Republican machine, advising that the Socialists be put out again, says: "The question is whether the State of New York or a group of radicals in New York City shall rule."

That isn't the question. It is this: "Will you allow radicals to elect men to office and seat them, in accordance with methods of established government, or will you set them an example of lawlessness and thus strengthen the arguments of criminals that advocate physical force?"

Trotzky says he will "make Poland want peace." He is preparing a new army.

Senator Hitchcock, most friendly to the President, says the United States should recognize the Russian government.

Common sense makes it clear that those most bitterly hating Bolshevism and its alleged shortcomings should be most eager to see the Russian government acknowledged.

Let the Russians trade, let them make money and get rich, and you will see a change come over their dream.

Keep them shut in, hated by the world and hating the outside world, and you keep alive a force of bitterness that will not do this earth any good.

This and other governments should recognize the right of the Russian government to rule themselves as they please, changing the system from time to time as they choose, as long as Russia recognizes the rights of others in their own governments.

The international bugaboo is Bolshevist propaganda. That will soon melt away in the warmth of Bolshevik prosperity. To fight an idea is to keep it alive.

More Truth Than Poetry

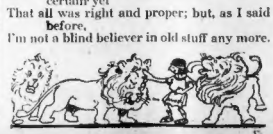
The Unbeliever

By S. E. KISER

I DON'T believe that story about the snake and Eve;
It's nothing but a fable for children to believe.
Don't tell me Balaam's donkey possessed the gift of speech,
Or that the whale spewed Jonah up safely on the beach.
I don't believe such nonsense, but every little while
I meet some smooth promoter who has a winning smile,
And when he has departed I wake up with a shock
To find that he has sold me a bunch of rotten stock.

I DON'T believe that Daniel sat in a lion's den;
Tell that to naughty children, but not to thoughtful men.
That tale concerning Noah I pass up with a wink;
Slip that to silly people, but not to those who think.
I can't believe that Samson's great strength was in his hair;
But yesterday a lady who was in deep despair
Related her sad story—she had a pleading look—
And after she had left me I missed my pocketbook.

I DON'T believe the devil wears any clanking chains;
Such trash is for the foolish, but not for men of brains.
I have no faith to squander on things I cannot see;
Those visions of the prophets make no appeal to me.
I recently played poker with strangers whom I met
While riding in a Pullman—I'm not quite certain yet
That all was right and proper; but, as I said before,
I'm not a blind believer in old stuff any more.



Letters to the Editor

French Loan

Editor Boston American:

Note the quick subscription for the French loan in the United States. If it is to build up France, well and good, but if any of the American money is used for war purposes and especially against Russia, I say it is a crime against humanity to loan money any more for such purposes.

AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Lucid Explanation

Editor Boston American:

Just one hasty word in praise of the most excellent and forceful letter in the edition American 9-13-'20 by one Paul P. Sapine, complimenting and at the same time explaining case of brave MacSwiney. In fact, I think it is easily one of the best articles yet written on the question, denoting a close understanding of the topic.

HAROLD T. CLARKE.

Republican Now

Editor Boston American:

Chairman Hays' comment that "Maine continues to be American," I think is perfectly proper. How any man or woman, loving America and its institutions, could vote other than the Republican ticket at this time, is inconceivable. I've voted the Democratic ticket for the past 20 years and am now all through with Democracy as at present constituted.

Wonderful Work

Editor Boston American:

Your paper is doing a wonderful work in the life of our country and the history of the world; but pardon me if I disagree with Mr. Brisbane's statement about the "British Imperial Dinosaur, governing the most of the world so well." NO! NO! She has, has wonderfully and successfully plundered, and robbed and drained the life's blood from every colony held in bondage. This is distinct in the end from good management. An honorable man like George Washington, would not take action against good management.

Your editorial, "Don't Blame Labor for Street Railway Fare Boost," is good; but, let the fares go up, quicker and higher. Then sooner will the people wake up and, by right of eminent domain, take and manage all public necessities and natural resources, at cost, for the benefit of all the people, like the postoffice, and also like the street railway of Glasgow, Scotland.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—I am a boy of fifteen. My mother insists that on Sundays I shall wear a suit made of black velvet, very soft and tight-fitting, and although I have protested it has been useless. Either I must wear this suit or be punished by my father. Consequently the pain of the punishment makes me surrender and this effeminate apparel makes me the butt of the other boys. What would you do if you were in my place?

JUST A BOY.

MY DEAR boy.
I DON'T blame you.
FOR BEING sore.
BUT I'M afraid,
IT WOULDN'T do.
IF I suggest.
THAT YOU disobey.
AND INSTEAD of saying.
WHAT I would do.
IF IN your place.
I'LL PUT myself.
IN YOUR parents' place.
AND IF I were them.
I'M VERY sure.
I'D HATE to see.
A BOY of mine.
WEAR ANYTHING.
THAT LOOKED as silly.
AS A velvet suit.
THAT FITTED tight.
AND I'D hate to think.
THAT A boy of mine.
THROUGH CAUSE of mine.
SHOULD BE the butt.
OF OTHER boys.
BECAUSE I'D feel.
THAT EVERY time.
THIS BOY of mine.
WAS SO abused.
BY OTHER boys.
THERE'D COME a wound.
OF BITTERNESS.
THAT ADDED to.
MIGHT NEVER heal.
AND FEELING so.
I'M ALSO sure
THAT IF he had.
A VELVET suit.
THAT FITTED tight.
I'D TELL his ma.
TO TAKE the thing.
AND BURN it up.
AND IF not that,
I'D MAKE him.
LET HIS hair grow long.
TO MATCH his suit.

I THANK you.

WHY ENVY OR HATE ONE WHO HAS BEAUTY?

By Beatrice Fairfax

DID you ever meet a single soul who wouldn't far rather look at a pretty pink rosebud than at a withered old rose? And how many people do you know who actually prefer a dirty and ragged small boy whose face was washed some time within the week to a pretty baby, rosy and clean?

Or maybe you've met folks who prefer gazing on a broken-down cab horse to running loving eyes over the sleek, chestnut coat of a splendidly groomed thoroughbred—that's absurd, isn't it?

All right. We agree. And agreeing, we share the premises of our argument.

Attack of Envy

Now, then, don't you know plenty of folks who just naturally get an attack of envy whenever they see a handsome man or a pretty girl?

"He can't be any account," says Clarence, scornfully, of Edgar. "He's too darn good-looking to amount to shucks."

Well, of course, the well-favored human does get a little headstart over the homely one because of our aforesaid love of beauty, and he may lean a little heavily on the idea that handsome does as handsome is. But an idea is a weak sister on which to do a lot of leaning. You have to bolster it up with a whole lot of good faith and performance if you count on it to support you.

Malice and Hate

So, if Miss Beauty and Mr. Handsome are that and nothing more, where does it get them? And if they get nowhere in this world of ours, what possible reason is there for envying them?

But if the good-looking human has a soul to match and a brain worthy of its setting, what jaundiced creatures we must be to have malice and hate in our hearts for a being who brings real contributions to life.

SHOW YOUR APPRECIATION

Of course, old man, you may expect your wife to do all she can to save your money, but when she does something out of the ordinary—something you have always hired done, it would give her a good bit of encouragement if you would give her in money what you would otherwise have paid for the job.

Never thought of doing such a thing, did you?

Whatever she has done you have taken for granted and as a matter of course and often you omitted any expression of thanks.

It isn't the right way to do, now, is it?

Most husbands give too little credit to their wives for the work they do.

You may think it is silly to compliment your wife or reward her in some way for something she is not accustomed to doing and for which you have always paid dot money.

But down in your heart you know you like to be praised for doing something which you feel has been well done.

You make it appear that you do not care for compliments, but you do.

Well, so does your wife, and you should be more generous with your compliments to her and make your financial gifts as surprisingly large as you can afford.

You will more than get back your interest.

Stars and Stripes

Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey
Where buttermilk costs more than men can pay.

The height of folly is achieved when one's rainy day savings are invested in a needlessly expensive and ornate umbrella.

Let us then be always striving,
never idle, never lax;
It's so nice to be contriving to evade the income tax.

Most of the women who are demanding a single standard of morality wouldn't take advantage of the coveted license if they were to get it.

ANSWERS TO SCIENTIFIC QUESTIONS OF A BOY

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I am but a boy, but like many boys your articles have interested me and greatly helped me, and I have a few questions to ask. (1) Exactly why and how does one balance himself on a bicycle when riding, and why is it not possible when stationary? (2) Please explain a seltzer bottle? (3) How does friction cause fire? Rubbing two pieces of wood causes heat, but how does it cause ignition? M. TOBIAN.

Bayonne, N. Y.

THESE are good questions which no doubt often puzzle people older and more experienced than boys. But they are not questions to which it is easy to give clear and satisfactory answers in a few words and without mathematical explanations. Let us try them.

(1) Balancing on a bicycle. Bicycles, hoops and tops are all examples of what scientists call the dynamics of rotation, a subject the principles of which cannot be discussed without the use of mathematics. But, by recalling what everybody knows from experience about the two simple playthings mentioned, we can, at least, see how their behavior helps to explain that of the more complicated bicycle. You find it virtually impossible to make a large hoop stand upright, but if you set it rolling rapidly it stands up and runs as steadily as a wheel.

Science of It

This is scientifically explained by the principle that a rotating body tends to keep its axis of rotation unchanged in direction, and when forced to change moves only in certain peculiar ways. For instance, if you start the hoop rolling with its axis tilted, i. e., with a lean toward one side or the other, instead of falling in the direction in which it leans it will simply curve its path in that direction and keep on rolling. Gravity is all the time pulling downward on the leaning side, but the hoop defeats gravity's attempt to make it fall by turning its axis in a particular way. Mathematics shows how this is due to a phenomenon called precession.

Now, if you run alongside the leaning hoop and with a stick turn it into a still more curved path it will immediately rear itself more upright. This is also due to precession. A top behaves similarly. When spun it stands up on its peg, and if pushed does not fall, but moves in curious ways which the law of precession explains. So, also, a bicycle in motion keeps upright because of the rotation of its wheels, and if it leans it turns as a hoop turns.

Seltzer Bottle

(2) In a seltzer bottle gas under strong pressure is mingled with the water. When the valve is opened the pressure of the gas forces both gas and water out together in a fizzing stream.

(3) The flame from burning wood is due to the combustion of gases distilled from the wood by the heat. Combustion is a process of oxidation, i. e., combination of oxygen with other chemical elements, and it may occur without flame. When friction has raised the temperature to a certain point gaseous combination takes place, producing more heat, and when the temperature reaches, and remains at, the "ignition" point—which varies with substances and circumstances—flame appears.

First Objectors

THE three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims is to be celebrated December 21. Foreign-born people who have not been quite satisfied with some of the things they have found here will perhaps wonder why there should be a celebration in honor of the Pilgrims, who began, as soon as they landed, to find fault with things as the natives had them arranged.

"Chick!" "Chick!"

In the kindness of your heart did you ever stop your car and offer some weary-looking little yellow haired chicken standing on a street corner waiting for a trolley car, a ride in your handsome new Gasbag Sixteen? Did the little chicken stick its little snub nose in the air and look Mann Act violation at you? Yes, it does make you look small, doesn't it? We know because we too hold the belief that charity begins on the back seat, but next time try it on an old gray haired lady and see if you don't get a kinder reception.—October Motor.
